LAW AND ORDER PRIMARY ISSUE, GOVERNOR SAYS

Davey Tells Wellsville Rally Sawyer Is 'Pantywaist;' Hits Lewis And CIO

Gov. Martin L. Davey told 1,500 at a Wellsville Democratic rally Friday night his fight for renomination is a "law and order issue."

He gave a detailed account of his stewardship, cited his no new taxes record, disposed of his Democratic foe, Charles Sawyer, by terming him a "pantywaist" and struck out with a bitter attack at John L. Lewis and the CIO during his brief appearance on the speakers' stand in the public square.

An apathetic crowd heard his remarks. There were a few bursts of applause and scattered "boos," while the cry, "you're a liar," greeted his assertion "I have always been a friend of labor."

Indicts Lewis Union

The governor, bringing the gubernatorial battle to Columbiana county with the Wellsville speech last night and another today in Salem, divided his talk into a summary of his administration and an indictment of the Committee for Industrial Organization's meddling in Ohio politics.

He spent little time on Sawyer, whom he accused of being a political coward—"a man without a platform or explanation of what he's for or against."

He dismissed John W. Bricker, Republican aspirant for nomination, as "in the same boat with Sawyer," and predicted "I will swamp Sawyer at the primaries.

His address turned into heated channels when he assailed Lewis and the CIO. He said he sent troops to patrol Ohio's "little steel" strike of last summer "only because the Communists were leading it into the pathways of violence" and declared the arrival of the militia in Warren and Youngstown "prevented the communities from being drenched in the blood of workingmen."

He accused Lewis of "trying to take over the state government through Sawyer" and said the CIO chieftain has "taken the worst rats of America to his bosom."

Davey was introduced by Robert McHenry of East Liverpool, Democrat county chairman. Ray Bevans, of the governor's executive staff, filled in as speaker while Davey put away an order of lamb chops in a nearby restaurant after his arrival from Massillon.

Praises A. F. of L. Honesty

"The American Federation of Labor keeps its contracts, but how can you sign a contract with the CIO?" he asked.

Taking up the fight against his opponent, Davey said Sawyer's campaign manager had asked for permission to speak at the rally. "I told him if he wanted to speak to get up his own meeting. He can't get up a good meeting. I don't know much about where he has been or what he has been doing, I haven't seen him."

"A couple of weeks ago I came across him at Fremont. He came on ahead of me and talked for 20 minutes. I think I have a good memory, but the only thing I can remember he said was that he would make a better governor than Davey. He has no platform—he doesn't say what he is for or against, all he does is knock Davey."

Davey said he thought both Sawyer and Bricker have "ice water in their veins."

Here Davey drew his first "boo."

SUPERVISORS TIGHTEN RELIEF REQUIREMENTS

First Half Of August Orders Total $3,002 To 1,540

The local welfare office today prepared to enforce tightened state relief restrictions as case workers wrote first half of August orders totaling $3,002.76 for Monday distribution to a mounting case load of 537 representing 1,540 persons.

Amount of county's August allocation has not been announced, with the July deficit standing at $598.21.

Each case head or person in whose name relief is given must call in person for orders, K. L. Shenkel, case worker, announced, in compliance with a new state regulation. Mr. Shenkel recently estimated that the new state law increasing from one to three years the period in which a person must have resided in Ohio to be eligible for poor relief would eliminate approximately three to five percent of the clients here.

Oranges will be distributed Monday as a surplus commodity.

The July deficit was the result of the difference between an expenditure of $6,242.21 and the monthly allocation of $5,644. Lack of increase of WPA jobs accounted for the gain in relief rolls from the July 15 list of 513 cases representing 1,439 persons.

Il Duce Defends Racial Policy In Sharp Criticism Of Vatican

Mussolini Insists Code Doesn't Imitate Nazi Program; Attack Causes Uneasiness Among Catholics

By The Associated Press.

FORLI, Italy, July 30—Premier Mussolini replied personally today to Pope Pius' assertion that the new Fascist race policy was adopted in imitation of Nazi Germany.

Addressing a group of Fascist party officials in camp at Forli, Mussolini asserted, "You know and everyone knows that also on the question of race we will shoot straight.

"To say that Fascism has imitated anyone or anything is simply absurd."

L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, yesterday quoted the Pope in discussing the race doctrine as asking, "Why in the world Italy unfortunately felt the need to imitate Germany?"

Two Sentences Distributed

The Pope was addressing missionary students of 37 nationalities who visited him Thursday at his summer residence, Castel Gandolfo.

Mussolini, who left Rome yesterday for his summer place at Rocca Della Caminate, arose early today to make his reply.

At 8 a. m. he went to camp and made an inspection. Then he addressed the Fascist officials.

The two sentences from his talk referring to imitation of Nazi Germany were distributed by Stefani, official Italian news agency. No further quotes were made available.

Mussolini's remarks were the sharpest he had used in years toward the Vatican and caused a new uneasiness among Catholics over whether the present trend of Fascism was heading toward a break with the church.

Before speaking to the officials, Il Duce reviewed a parade of Fascist youths at the camp. They performed the Roman step, or Italian version of the goosestep, which is held by many also to have been borrowed from Germany, but which Fascists insist really is of ancient Roman origin.

Flies Along Adriatic Coast

After leaving the camp, Mussolini climbed into a tri-motored airplane and piloted it himself on a trip along the nearby Adriatic coast.

The Pope in his address referred to the new Fascist race doctrine which holds that Jews "do not belong to the Italian race" but did not mention Jews by name.

Referring to the universality of the Catholic faith, he said:

"Separatism, no. We do not want to separate anything in the human family and racialism and exaggerated nationalism as commonly spoken of, man's barriers erected between men and other men, between folk and other folk."

The Pope also replied to newspaper attacks against the Catholic action, a lay organization, by declaring:

"Who injures Catholic action, injures the Pope and who injures the Pope, "dies." The "dies" was interpreted to mean "dies spiritually."

In Rome, the Fascist newspaper Il Tevere today applied the Fascist race doctrine to Mayor LaGuardia of New York by saying he had no right to belong to "our race."

LaGuardia is partly Italian and partly of Hebrew origin.

JURORS ABSOLVE SAWYER WORKER

Fails To Find Evidence That Nichols Solicited Money

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, July 30.—A Franklin county grand jury investigating political "war chest" contributions today absolved Charles Sawyer's campaign manager of "any culpability whatsoever" in charges of soliciting civil service workers in violation of state law.

Headquarters of Gov. Martin L. Davey, opposed by Sawyer for renomination, had charged that Hugh L. Nichols, Sawyer's campaign manager, sought contributions from two employes of the state division of aid for the aged.

"Diligent inquiry into the charges made against Nichols," said the jury's final report, "failed to find any credible evidence whatever tending to show any culpability, whatever on his part."

The jury's final report vigorously criticized as "deplorable" the conduct of some state government departments, finding that many of their employes were obligated to spend their time in working for the renomination of Gov. Davey.

The jury, which indicted 18 officers and employes in the Davey administration for soliciting or receiving funds from civil service workers in previous reports, returned no additional bills today, but recommended that Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy impanel another special grand jury to continue the investigation.

The grand jurors asserted "pitiful appeals are being made to recipients of aid for the aged for their suffrage and support" by the Davey administration.

"We find no statute forbidding such solicitation," the report added, "but we do think the dictates of common decency would forestall such procedure."

Campaign Action Criticized

The jury criticized use of official state stationary for writing campaign letters, condemned assignment of civil service employes to political work while on the state payroll and suggested that Davey's letter-writing campaign might have been carried on with use of state postage but added this was not proved.

The report found that costs for funerals of old age pensioners had risen sharply and that Davey campaign managers were using this as an appeal for financial aid from undertakers.

"We discovered a new office, to wit, mortuary visitors," the report said of the aid to aged division. "We labored diligently to discover an excuse for their existence and failed to find it."

The jury, under the direction of Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy, began its investigation of state civil service law violations May 2 and in two partial reports indicted 18 officials and employes of the Davey administration. All were charged either with soliciting or receiving campaign contributions from civil service employes.

The probe was completed yesterday. Among the last four witnesses was Charles H. Hubbell of Cleveland, one of those recently indicted, who resigned Monday as chief accountant for the unemployment compensation commission.

VOTE NEXT WEEK TESTS NEW DEAL

Roosevelt To Face First Of Vital August Primaries

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30 — The Roosevelt administration stands to gain great political advantages or lose considerable prestige in Democratic primary elections next week.

Six of the 15 primaries scheduled during August will be held within five days. Senate nominations are at stake in Kansas, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Capital politicians believe Sen. George McGill, who has only nominal opposition, will win Tuesday in Kansas, and they expect the Missouri nomination to go to Bennett Champ Clark, an anti-administration leader in the senate.

Kentucky Race Holds Spotlight

Thus in the first two major primaries the administration should break about even with the conservative Democratic forces.

The third senatorial primary of the week will be Thursday in Tennessee. Sen. George L. Berry, traditionally an ardent administrationist but recently cool toward the new deal, is seeking the nomination against several opponents.

The administration has stayed scrupulously out of the Tennessee situation. The senate campaign expenditures committee severely criticized all factions in a statement this week.

It is in the Kentucky race that the White House may achieve its greatest victory or suffer its worst defeat because President Roosevelt has asked in no uncertain terms for the renomination of senate Majority Leader Barkley over his opponent, Gov. A. B. Chandler.

If Barkley wins next Saturday, the victory will be interpreted universally as a personal triumph for the President. Should Chandler emerge victorious, the prestige of the administration would be severely shaken.

G. O. P. Intervenes In Kansas

The Republican national leadership, heretofore wary of primary intervention, has taken up a vulnerable position in Kansas in an effort to block the nomination of Rev. Gerald B. Winrod of Wichita for McGill's senate seat. Other Republican aspirants include former Gov. Clyde M. Reed and Dallis W. Knapp.

John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, urged the voters to reject Mr. Winrod.

The week's other important Republican senatorial primary will be in Missouri, where former Gov. Henry S. Coulfield seeks the nomi-

STEEL OFFICIAL SAYS MOST MEN OPPOSED PACT

White Testifies Majority Of Workers Feared Closed Shop Under Contract

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The operating vice president of the Republic Steel Corp. said today "very bitter" opposition of a majority of employes influenced the company's decision to sign a contract with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

The official, Charles M. White, testifying before the senate civil liberties committee, declared many workers had expressed fear they might be "sold down the river." SWOC proposed a contract to the firm March 31, 1937.

"There were a great many inquiries," White said, "asking if Republic was going to 'sell out.' Many of our employes were wondering if we were going to make a bargain with some one else when we had established employe representative relations with our men."

White said the contract offered by Clinton S. Golden, regional director for the SWOC, provided no improvement in wages, hours or working conditions. Company officials, therefore, were concerned, he said, with the fear that signing such a contract might lead eventually to establishment of a "closed shop" in the steel industry.

Approaching Menace Seen

"So far as you know," Committee Chairman La Follette (Prog) of Wisconsin inquired, "this form of contract, signed by some of the other steel companies, has not resulted in a closed shop yet, has it?"

White said he thought some of the companies were "getting on very close ground" to such a situation.

"We didn't see," White said, "how we were going to have a contract that would not lead us into more trouble with the men who didn't want a contract than with those that did—if they did.

"We felt, very frankly, that the motive behind such a contract was the means to an end and the end would be to force our men unwillingly to sign up with the SWOC. And the men felt the same way."

Meanwhile, three Monroe, Mich., officials were called to testify about a "back-to-work" vote held preceding the reopening of Republic's Monroe plant last summer. The three called were Mayor Daniel Knaggs, Sheriff Joseph Bairley and Chief of Police Jess Tisher.

When the company failed to acknowledge receipt of this proposed contract and a request for a conference, Golden telegraphed Girdler May 3, 1937, that unless Republic gave the union a meeting date "we shall be obligated to disavow all responsibility" for union members remaining at work in the company's mills.

Contract Held Unnecessary

Two days later, J. A. Voss, Republic's director of industrial relations, wired Golden the company saw no necessity for a contract,

NEW YORK PAIR HURT IN HANCOCK ACCIDENT

Sedan, Truck Collide Near Chester In Dense Fog

Two New York tourists are being treated for injuries in City hospital today following a headon collision with a truck on route 30 near Chester at 7 a. m.

The victims are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Pollitz of New Rochelle, N. Y., who were enroute to Chicago on their vacation.

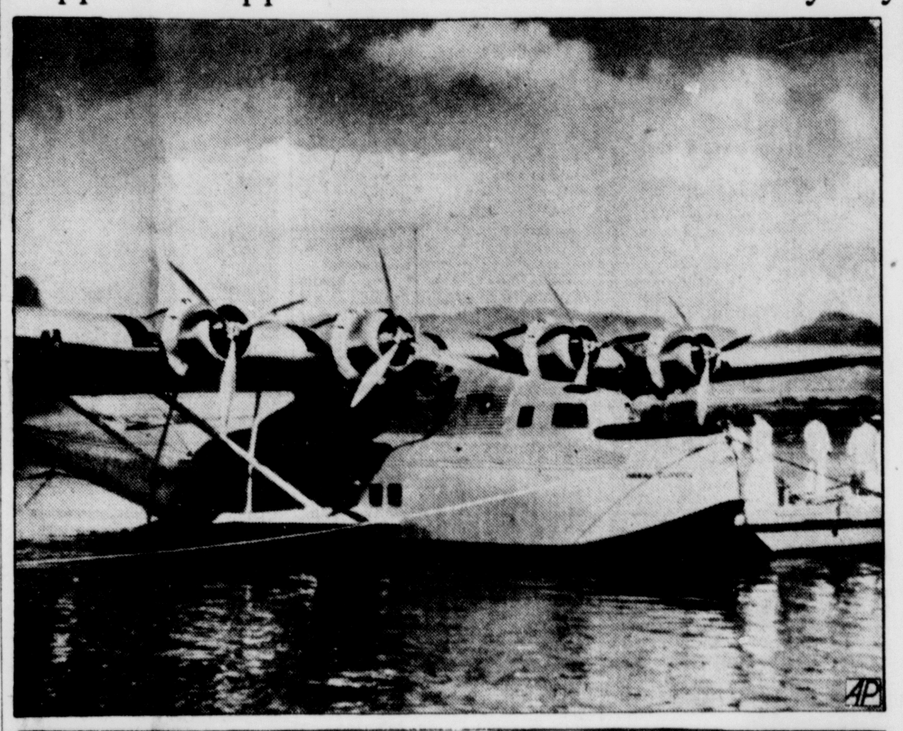

The accident occurred in the dense morning fog 50 feet east of the junction of routes 30 and 2. Their sedan struck a truck driven by Roy Kays, enroute to Virginia.

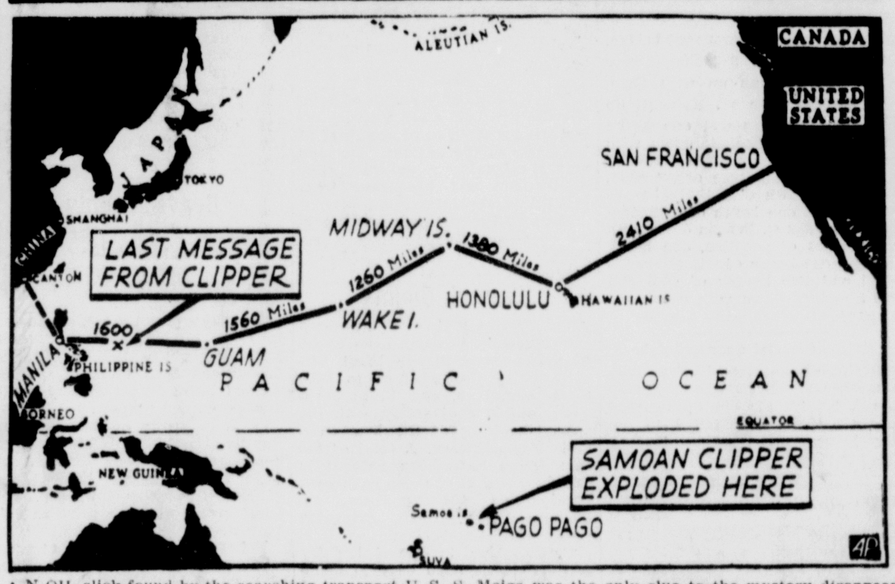

Mr. Pollitz suffered cuts about the face and a possible fracture of the hips, while Mrs. Pollitz received face lacerations. They were taken to City hospital in the Arner ambulance. Their sedan was badly damaged.

Mr. Kays was unhurt and damage to his empty truck, was slight. The accident is being investigated by William Graham, deputy sheriff.

The road where the accident happened is straight, but the fog was so thick it was impossible to determine which vehicle was in the wrong. Neither driver was going fast, Graham said.

Clipper's Disappearance Creates South Seas Mystery

AN OIL slick found by the searching transport U. S. S. Meigs was the only clue to the mystery disappearance of the Hawaii clipper with 15 aboard in the South Seas. The giant trans-Pacific flying boat is shown above. The last message came from the plane when it was 565 miles from Manila, shown on the map which details the route of the 26-ton airboat. The plane was flying from Guam to Manila, having left San Francisco Saturday and was far south of her regular course, apparently to escape a storm, when she last reported. The area being searched is the cradle of typhoons. Fate of the boat and the crew of nine and six passengers is locked in the silent ocean wastes.

TOKYO-MOSCOW FRICTION GROWS

Russia Protests In Fourth Clash Of Border Troops

By The Associated Press.

New friction between Soviet Russia and Japan in the Far East today underlined a zone of increasing danger in a world already torn by two wars.

The Russian government protested to Japan against new "provocations by Japanese-Manchurian militarists" in the fourth clash this month on the disputed Siberian frontier. Japan immediately rejected the protest, holding Russia was the aggressor.

The Russian note demanded punishment of the guilty and warned "that the Soviet government places the entire responsibility for consequences of these actions on organs of the Japanese government in Manchuria."

Both sides were said to have suffered casualties when Japanese-Manchukuo troops yesterday tried to occupy a border hill and "were decisively driven from Soviet territory," according to the Russian version.

In Great Britain, naval chiefs were told they must work or get out as both the admiralty and air ministry took steps in pace with the newly liberalized war ministry regulations to attract more men to the colors and open the way for advancement of younger officers.

The announcement coincided with the opening of a great naval pageant at Portsmouth.

The wars were stationary both in China and Spain.

Most important development of a week's fighting in the Spanish civil war was the government's surprise offensive in Catalonia. The front line along the Ebro river was virtually unchanged, however, for the second successive day.

Gypsy Way

Tribe Turns To Own Laws To Settle Dispute

Special To The Review.

LISBON, July 30—A gypsy court will sit today in judgment on Dorothy and Nick Denetros, members of a band of nomads who were jailed Wednesday on theft charges preferred by a member of another band.

The father and daughter were committed to the county jail in default of $1,500 bond after Justice of the Peace M. K. Zimerman bound them over to the grand jury.

The girl was accused of stealing $200 belonging to George Nichols, a Russian gypsy and itinerant tinner, of a band encamped nearby. The father was charged with concealing the money.

Friday afternoon Nichols appeared at the sheriff's office. He said he had decided to submit his case to a gypsy court—customary method of settling gypsy disputes to avoid the white man's laws and court's. The wiseman of the tribe sits in judgment, both sides give their versions and the "judge's" decision is binding. There is no appeal.

When the complainant agreed to withdraw his charges the justice of the peace dismissed the case. The girl and her father were released from jail last evening and taken at once to the camp on route 7 near Middleton where preparations for the trial were underway today.

Escaped Convict Captured

LONDON, O., July 30.—Shelton Waite, 35, one of six prisoners who escaped from the London prison farm Friday, was captured early today at South Charleston, 11 miles west of here. He was returned immediately to the prison. The other five still are at large. Waite was sentenced from Brown county on burglary and larceny charges.

LIGHT BALLOTING SEEN IN HANCOCK

Small Turnout Expected For Primary Vote Tuesday

Special To The Review.

NEW CUMBERLAND, July 30.—Hancock county's 15,000 eligible voters are showing little interest in the primary election next Tuesday, with six county races and contests for the Clay and Butler district squire's posts drawing the most attention.

Because of his active campaign for renomination, Robert L. Ramsey, representative to congress from the first district, has stirred some interest in that race. His opponents are Frank C. Raymond of Fairmount, whom he defeated in the 1934 primary, and Joseph S. Tost of Follansbee. A. C. Schiffler of Wheeling is unopposed on the Republican ticket.

The first congressional district comprises Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, Wetzel and Marion counties.

Ramsay Stumped County

Ramsay is the only national candidate to stump the county, having made speeches before the Labor Non-Partisan league in Chester and New Cumberland. Ramsay is a new deal supporter.

In the county races, there are contests for clerk of the county court, clerk of the circuit court, county commissioners, full term board of education, unexpired term board of education, and the house of delegates.

The only contest on the Republican ticket for county offices is

HUGHES SPEEDS PLANE TO TEXAS HOME TOWN

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30 — Howard Hughes took off for Houston, Tex., in his round-the-world plane at 8:52 a. m. eastern standard time today, planning to fly non-stop to his Texas home town.

He expected to reach Houston about 2 p. m., eastern standard time.

Refreshed by a good sleep after a noisy, enthusiastic welcome yesterday, the young millionaire was accompanied by three of his world flight companions, Ed Lund, engineer; Richard R. Stoddard, radio operator, and Harry P. M. Connor, navigator and his flight manager, Albert I. Lodwick.

His other co-navigator, Lieut. Thomas Thurlow, took off for Houston at 6:59 a. m. eastern standard time in an army plane.

The party planned to stay in Houston a day, then fly to Los Angeles.

OIL SPOT ON SEA FEARED SITE OF CLIPPER CRASH

Area In Pacific Presumably Marks Site Where Giant Ship Bearing 15 Hit

By The Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30. — A "thick oil area," marking the spot where the trans-Pacific Hawaii clipper presumably hit the ocean, was discovered by the army transport Meigs today 500 miles from Manila.

A radio message from the searching transport, intercepted here, told of the discovery of the tell-tale oil slick directly in the line of the clipper's course when she disappeared Thursday night with 15 men aboard her on a flight from Guam to Manila.

The message signed by the captain of the Meigs and directed to military headquarters in Manila, said the oil-coated area was about 1,500 feet in circumference. A lifeboat was immediately lowered to investigate the slick and take samples of the oil and water.

Army Confirms Message

The message was confirmed later by army headquarters in Manila.

At Pan-American Airways headquarters here, where officials awaited confirmation of the message, hope was held the oil indicated the 26-ton flying boat had made an emergency landing rather than marking the spot where the craft sank.

The clipper carried a supply of heavy oil to quiet seas for an emergency landing. Airways officials said this may have been dumped for an emergency landing and drifted to sea faster than the clipper.

But this did not account for the failure of the clipper to radio an emergency landing was necessary or report later by her wireless, capable of communicating while drifting on the sea.

Pending further investigation the Meigs was remaining in the position at latitude 12.11 longitude 130.33 east. This 500 miles from Manila, or 65 east of the position given by clipper when her radio su went dead.

Intercepted By Operator

The radio message was cepted by operators here before 5 a. m., eastern st time.

An oil coating is left on the surface by a plane when it sinks in the ocean. Similar oil slicks indicated the last resting place of th Samoan clipper, only other Pan American flying boat to meet disaster in three years of flying over the Pacific. Seven men were killed when the Samoan clipper exploded in mid-air of January this year.

Persons familiar with far eastern Pacific waters said there was little likelihood the oil came from any other source than the missing clipper. The position is in an area not traveled by steamers or by planes.

The transport Meigs, which radioed the discovery, was the only ship known to have been in that general area, although a small naval fleet was dispatched to the scene from Manila and Samoa.

Eight army and navy planes, sent out from their Cavite base on Manila bay, far eastern terminus of the clipper lines, patroled the

GRAND JURY INQUIRY OF EARLE THWARTED

Assembly Passes Four Bills To 'Choke' Judiciary

By The Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 30. — Pennsylvania's general assembly today stopped a grand jury investigation of blackmail, coercion and extortion charges leveled at Democratic Gov. George H. Earle and 13 associates and turned the inquiry over to a legislative committee.

The administration whipped through the Democratic-controlled general assembly, in a dawn session, four measures to:

Suspend the Dauphin county (Harrisburg) September grand jury's inquiry, scheduled to start Aug. 8.

Set up a legislative investigation with the power of subpena.

Establish the legislature as the only body with authority to investigate civil officers subject to impeachment.

Give the state's attorney general, appointed by the governor, the right to supersede a district attorney in cases where civil officers were accused of misconduct.

The committee to conduct the inquiry will be appointed Tuesday by Speaker Roy E. Furman.

The legislation passed the state senate finally after a three-hour debate. The house a short time later concurred in minor amendments. Gov. Earle waited in his office until 4:30 a. m., eastern standard time, to sign the measures.

The bills were started only last Monday night in the special session of the legislature, called by Earle primarily to checkmate the grand jury.

'There's So Much To Be Done,' Ford Says On 75th Birthday

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 30.—Henry Ford celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary today.

It was one of the rare occasions upon which the noted industrialist has bothered about one of his own birthday anniversaries. Usually he has "observed" rather than "celebrated" them—in "just another day at work" in his laboratory or in quiet seclusion at his pretentious camp in the Huron mountains of the south shore of Lake Superior.

Today, however, the city of Detroit, along with half a hundred other cities and villages throughout Michigan, had set aside the diamond anniversary as "Henry Ford day" and Ford entered happily into the spirit of the occasion.

He gave over part of the morning and much of the night to receive greetings from his fellow townspeople and friends of many years, some of whom had watched with awe—and not a little skepticism—as he developed an industrial empire from an experiment that began in a small brick barn on Detroit's Bagley ave. of 1893.

Ford's 75th anniversary finds him in the midst of a huge expansion program—a plant enlargement plan involving an outlay of upward of $5,000,000. For Ford the day marked not the ending of a year but the beginning of another.

"There is so much to be done," he said today. "You know I never pay much attention to birthdays. After you've had as many as I have one more or less isn't of any great consequence."

He made it clear that three-quarters of a century of varying industrial, social and economic changes has not altered his conviction that "the world hasn't seen anything yet compared to what it will see."

"When you remember that the automobile industry is not much older than 35 years you can imagine what will happen in the future," he added. Then, becoming more specific, Ford said:

"I think business will go ahead with stronger strides in September."

Pleasing Ford most, perhaps, in today's birthday ceremonies was the demonstration at the Michigan state fairgrounds in which 8,000 children from the city's playgrounds were to greet him with

PITTSBURGH DAM HAS BIGGEST JOB TOTAL IN VALLEY

Wellsville Flood Wall Next With 245 At Work; 2,140 Employed In District

Work on flood control dams has made Crooked Creek in the Pittsburgh district the top river project, according to gaining weekly employment figures, showing a total of 285 as 53 contractor's men were added. At Wellsville, 245 men are working on the flood wall.

The Crooked creek project promises to continue operating with a large crew, with opening of bids this week for service and emergency sluice gates to be installed there and at Tionesta. The Hunter Steel Co. bettered the government estimate of $88,826.76 by asking $81,500 low bid.

Wellsville Bids Received

Meanwhile, bids on miscellaneous Wellsville equipment and material continued to be opened, assuring steady operations there. The Worthington Pump and Machinery Corp. was low with a figure of $5,000 for furnishing four pumps. Twelve bids were submitted, one for $7,900 f. o. b. Los Angeles coming from the Victor Equipment Co.

Employment figures as a whole gained 125 for a total of 2,140 when 134 contractor's men were added in a week's time. Lock 9, Allegheny river, added 67 for 195, close to Tionesta, 215. Contractor's totals have mounted steadily in recent weeks until they now stand at 715.

Government payrolls lost nine for 1,425, with the district field standing at 569 and district office at 503.

Repairs to the emptying valves of lock 8, Monongahela river, were under way today. Meanwhile, repairs at the upper gate of the land chamber at Emsworth dam were postponed.

Herrs Island dam, Allegheny river, was no more today as the Monongahela and Ohio Dredging Co. wound up removal operations. As an impressive climax to the work, two beartrap leaves of iron were taken out and sold for scrap. Cofferdams were not necessary in the removal of the 90-ton leaves.

River Pilots Warned

River interests have been notified to "steer clear" of test borings on the Ohio near Owensboro, Ky. to determine foundation conditions. A drillboat will be anchored at the site for a proposed bridge.

Moved in dam 8 lockage were the J. H. Hillman up with three empties, the John W. Hubbard up with nine empties and one barge of gasoline, the LaBelle down with nine barges of coal, the Reliance down with six barges of gasoline, the Peace down with three barges of pipe and one barge of merchandise, the John G. Britton down with two barges of gasoline, one barge of pipe, one barge of miscellaneous steel and two barges of coal and the Standard down with one barge of gasoline.

At a recent meeting of the LaCroft Sunbeam club at the home of the advisor, Mrs. Dan Beaver, cooking demonstrations were given by Donna Jean Colman, Alice Connors, June Mason and June Densmore.

The club also held a picnic recently at Thompson park in East Liverpool at which mothers of members were entertained.

The Merry Makers club of the Township Line school exhibited dresses and project books of members at a meeting Wednesday in the school house. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Chaney or route 7 Aug. 7.

Doris Newcomer gave a demonstration on making salads and sandwiches at a recent meeting at her home of the Jolly Junior club in Unity. Donna Jean Dornon, president, was in charge of the meeting at which 12 members answered roll call.

The club will meet Aug. 5 at the home of Ruth Wilson.

The 4-H Friendly Circle of Yellow Creek township met at the home of Vivian, Josephine and Dorothy Miller Wednesday afternoon. Record books were inspected and various stitches were demonstrated by members. Mae Miller gave a demonstration on dish washing.

The members responded to roll call by naming flowers. After the business meeting games were played and lunch was served by Vivian Miller, assisted by Phyllis Rice. Mary Graham, news reporter for the Violet 4-H club of Lisbon, was a visitor. The next meeting will be Aug. 10.

The Hilltop Toilers club of Summitville will hold a tea Tuesday afternoon for mothers of members at the home of the advisor. The club also is planning a program with Smiler Joe and his Gang from WWVA in the future.

Many of the girls are now working on dresses in their sewing projects.

Hancock County

Twenty-five 4-H club members carrying dairy projects have entered dairy cattle in the West Virginia Dairy Cattle Show to take place Aug. 8, 9, and 10 at Jackson's Mill in conjunction with the animal meeting of the West Virginia Farm Bureau. A total of 159 dairy cows have been entered in the show and 27 of these have been entered by 4-H members, announces T. R. Hash, extension agent, New Cumberland.

Participation in the 4-H dairy cattle show is open only to members of 4-H clubs actively engaged in carrying out a dairy project, Mr. Hash explains. Each animal exhibited must be the property of the club member in whose name it is entered.

Marshall county with 17 entries has the largest number of 4-H dairy cattle entered. The entries by breeds are:

Guernseys—Mary Cronin, Betty Cronin, Richard Cronin, Lewis; Frank Maple, Dean Herron, Jack Carson, Hancock; Dudley J. Sellers, Justus Carmichael, Marshall, Sam Wood Jr., of Ohio, and W. H. Bardell Jr., of Marshall, have entered Holstein heifers, and Virginia Burley of Marshall has entered the only registered milking shorthorn in the 4-H cattle show. Justus Carmichael will show the same heifer he showed last year that gave birth to a calf during the show.

Champion 4-H dairy cattle judging teams from approximately 10 counties will vie for state honor and the right to represent West Virginia at the National 4-H Dairy Show. Four counties, Mason, Marshall, Hancock and Ohio, have already entered teams in the state contest. The contest will be held Monday, Aug. 8, at 1 p. m.

The 4-H dairy showmanship contest will take place Tuesday morning, Aug. 9. All club members carrying a dairy project who personally exhibit and show dairy cattle in the show are eligible to enter the showmanship contest. Contestants will be judged on ability to show and handle their animals and on the show condition of their animals.

Beaver County

Three hundred and fifty 4-H club girls and boys and their parents attended the second annual county-wide picnic at Alum Rock Park, Potter township, Wednesday.

The day's program which started at 10 a. m. consisted of "get-acquainted" games led by Virginia Cowan and Jean Funk of Chippewa and Belva Jean Swick of North Sewickley, and German bat ball by Mrs. John Brown of Economy and Phyllis Cowan of Chippewa. A Scavenger hunt was directed by Ethel Steinacker and Zelda Stang of New Sewickley township. The boys' group won the prize in this contest.

Following a picnic lunch at noon, stunts were presented by members of Baker School, Brighton, Chippewa, Economy, Hanover, Hookstown, Independence, Mt. Vernon, North Sewickley and Racoon girls' clubs and North Sewickley boys' club. The stunt program was in charge of Ruth Caven and Patty Eales of North Sewickley.

A swimming period supervised by four life guards was held in the afternoon. The life guards presented a stunt, "Life Saving by Book," before the swimming hour began.

While club members and friends were swimming, Miss Mary Jordan of Potter township conducted contests for the mothers.

A final play-off between the winning girls' and boys' mushball teams was the last event of the afternoon. The teams played four innings and tied with a score of 3-3. They drew for prizes and the boys' team won first prize.

Thirteen members of the Susie-Q club and one visitor, Miss Irez Jones of Salem, met Thursday at the home of Thelma Hawkins. Of special interest was the report of activities at Camp Crag given by members who attended the week's session of the senior girls. A joint picnic with the Sewing and Cooking sisters was planned for Aug. 9.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Gene Meiser Aug. 3, with Dr. Seward Harris of Lisbon, county health doctor, who will check the girls in the health contest.

Refreshments were served by Miss Thelma Hawkins.

MAY BE HUGHES' LOVE

Is Howard Hughes, millionaire round-the-world flier, engaged to Fay Wray, movie actress? That was the question newsmen tried vainly to find an answer to after a brief meeting of the two on the station platform at Stamford, Conn., where they kissed and went on their respective ways, refusing to answer questions.

Catholic Day Picnic Set Aug. 7

A FULL day of activity, embracing numerous athletic and social events, is being planned for the annual Catholic day outing sponsored by the Knights of Columbus councils in Columbiana county at Peace Valley park Sunday, Aug. 7.

Robert Tubbs, past grand knight of the Salem council, is general chairman of the committee arranging the program. Henry Joseph, grand knight of Carroll council here, is secretary, and chairman of the athletic sub-committee.

Other subcommittees will be headed by grand knights of the other councils. The Salem group will be in charge of refreshments, East Palestine the social events and Leetonia the dance. The Salineville and Wellsville councils will aid on all committees.

Invitations are being extended to Catholics and their friends throughout the county.

One of the highlights of the afternoon program, which starts at noon, will be softball tournament, in which each council is expected to enter a team. Races for boys and girls of various ages, a horseshoe pitching tournament for men, contests for women, swimming and boating will be included.

A dance is planned after supper.

for clerk of county court between Dwight Allison of Chester, J. H. Beatty of New Cumberland and Winston R. Hale of New Cumberland.

Unopposed Republican candidates are George E. Loucas for house of delegates, R. M. Brown for clerk of the circuit court, Thomas J. Garlick for renomination as county commissioner, Nick Mandich of Weirton for board of education, full term, and Pete Capito for unexpired term of board.

Sweeney Runs For Senate

Thomas Sweeney of Wheeling is unopposed for state senator. The district includes Hancock, Brooke and Ohio counties.

Seeking Democratic nomination to the state senate are Carl B. Galbraith, now filling a vacancy in the senate, and George W. Oldham, now in the house of delegates, both from Ohio county. One is to be elected. The second member from this district is James Paul of Wellsburgh.

There is only one uncontested office on the Democratic ballot, that of county commissioner, for which Charles E. Mitchell of New Cumberland is a candidate.

Four candidates are running for nomination to the house of delegates. They are Dr. Buford Westbrooks of Weirton, Frank A. Pietranton of Hollidays Cove, and H. Burns McNeil and Clyde B. Cochran of New Cumberland.

4 Democrats Seek Clerk Post

Don G. Stewart, incumbent, is opposed by Harry E. Ward for clerk of the county court. William J. Long and Walter Sarnecki are seeking nomination for clerk of the circuit court, the post now held by Frank L. Bradley, who will retire when his term expires.

For the full term board of education post, four are seeking Democratic nomination. They are W. A. Collins, Ora J. Lyons, William Phillips, incumbent and present president of the board, and L. P. Turley, incumbent. Three are to be elected.

For the unexpired term Alvin W. Eckleberry of Newell, who was appointed to fill the vacancy, will seek nomination.

The resignation of W. E. Milligan in New Cumberland and the ousting of Mrs. Marie Cameron by the court in Weirton leaves the office of justice open in Clay and Butler districts, with unexpired terms of one year in each case.

Squire Terms To Be Filled

Clifford Reynolds will seek the Clay district post, and Roy Piletto the Butler district office on the Republican ticket.

H. C. Stewart of New Cumberland, who was appointed to fill Milligan's office, will be opposed by three for the Democratic nomination. They are Fred S. Dunlevy, Victor C. Jones and Matt McKenna.

TRIAL LAWYER HEADS U.S. BAR ASSOCIATION

Hogan, New Chief, To Wage Civil Liberties Fight

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, July 30 — Frank J. Hogan, student of Shakespeare and seeker of rare editions, intends as president of the American Bar association to provide defense counsel for the American citizen, "poor or rich," whose civil liberties are denied or threatened.

The Washington trial lawyer—61 years old, medium of stature and precise—became head of the association yesterday at the conclusion of its 61st annual convention. He was unopposed as a candidate to succeed Arthur T. Vanderbilt of Newark, N. J.

After an inaugural speech in which he emphasized "the rights and immunities vouchsafed by the bill of rights," Hogan was authorized by the association's house of delegates to appoint a civil liberties committee.

The committee received its first task almost immediately, that of studying a resolution asking the association to condemn Mayor Frank Hague and other Jersey City authorities for what it termed reported deportation of "citizens asserting the right publicly to express opinions on public questions."

EXPERIENCE

In the law is a valuable asset in the State Senate. Roy N. Merryman, one of the candidates on the Republican Ticket, has had years of experience in the practice of law, has served Steubenville as its City Solicitor for two terms and Jefferson County as Prosecuting Attorney for two terms.—Adv.

Fisher's Evening Verse

(For Your Scrapbook)

COUNTRY BOY

I've lived in the city of subways of "L's"
And sat in the foyers of stylish hotels
Observing the people whose confident air
Suggested the ease of a daily affair.
I frankly admit having studied their ways
And often I've found myself using a phrase
That seemed to be cleverly patterned, I thought
In keeping with city-bred graces I sought.

My methods of dress had to suffer a change
I purchased my clothes with a thought to arrange
In smart combinations the colors I knew
Were favored by those in the Fashion Review.
But somehow, my efforts to be like the rest
Were never completely successful, at best
And try as I might to assimilate charm
I still was a youth from a New England Farm.

I've learned that it's better to go through the day
And meet everyone in a natural way
The years in a city can never destroy
An air of the country that's born in a boy.

MANY OUTINGS BOOKED AT FIRESTONE RESORT

Special To The Review.

COLUMBIANA, July 30. — Charles Coppock, manager of Firestone park here, said today bookings for use of the resort are increasing.

Forty reservations have been made for the 1939 season and there are some for 1940, he revealed. Improvements include completion of the No. 2 pavilion where screens and running water have been installed.

Tables now seat 700 in the three pavilions. In two weeks there have been 50 reunions and picnics and 21,000 people have patronized the swimming pool this year.

Current bookings include, Grate reunion, Christian church outing and the R. W. Watterson picnic, today; the Van Fossen, Myers and Peterson reunions, and the East Liverpool Protected Home Circle picnic, Sunday, and many others during the coming week.

STOCKS RECOVER IN LIGHT TRADING

Steels, Motors Show Way For Selective Climb

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Steels and motors pointed the way for a selective stock market recovery today and favored issues pushed up fractions to a point or more at the best.

The comeback was accomplished on a relatively small volume, however, even for a Saturday session. Transfers were around 350,000 shares.

Many traders apparently felt the early pressure of dog-day apathy and got a head start on their week-end holiday.

While leading stocks received a fair share of speculative attention, low priced issues were again the liveliest, most adding small fractions to recent improvement.

Business news, on the whole, was still the main bolstering share influence. But some commentators thought the market might yet be called upon to test the lows of the past week and, while sentiment had lost little of its optimistic tinge, a more pronounced strain of caution was evident in commission houses.

Buying support was accorded U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Briggs Mfg., Yellow Truck, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, National Cash Register, Commercial Solvents, Coca-Cola, Richfield Oil, Childs Co., American Telephone and Douglas Aircraft.

Bonds and commodities were narrowly mixed.

A prop for the steels was found in unofficial estimates of another upturn next week in mill operations.

Holders of the motors seemingly were inspired by the much brighter outlook for the automobile makers in coming months.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 30.—Wheat prices sagged fractionally early today, the market was another draggy trading affair without definite direction and with Liverpool observing a holiday most traders preferred the sidelines.

Opening ¼ off to ¼ up, September 68-68⅛, December 70⅛-⅜, all contracts later declined, corn starting ⅛-¼ lower, September 56⅝-¾, December 54-54¼.

TAXPAYER'S SUIT FILED IN STATE COAL BUYING

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, July 30.—Charging that the state made fraudulent coal purchases from the Maher and North Coal Co. of Cleveland, Mrs. Agnes Dickinson, Columbus attorney, sought to recover $172,120 for the state in a taxpayer's suit filed in common pleas court today.

She also asked double indemnity under that clause of the Valentine anti-trust act.

Mrs. Dickinson contended the state was charged excessive prices and that much of the coal purchased from Maher and North was obtained without competitive bidding. She previously brought similar suits charging that the state paid excessive prices for "hot mix" road paving material and for hauling liquor to state stores.

but he expressed willingness to bargain with any employe representative and proposed a conference May 11.

Golden thereupon inquired whether the company proposed that the bargaining parties memorize the provisions of any agreement reached and whether it proposed that the officials of the company's 35 mills, the 200 union grievance committeemen and the 60,000 employes "also indulge in this memorizing process."

Asked by Chairman La Follette whether the company decided formally prior to the first conference against signing any contract, White replied:

"No. We still believed we could talk our way out of this thing."

White read into the record a newspaper report of a message from Sen. Wagner (D) of New York, author of the national labor relations act, asserting the law did not require an employer to sign a contract.

"But Sen. Wagner said the law does require employers to bargain in good faith," responded La Follette.

COMMISSIONERS HOLD FATE OF CURRAN'S JOB

Special To The Review.

LISBON, July 30 — Prosecutor Karl Stouffer, back today with other Columbiana county attorneys who attended the bar association convention in Cleveland, said County Detective George Curran's retention will depend on whether the commissioners make the necessary salary appropriations.

He indicated Curran will return to work in mid-August. The detective was laid off in June and has been off the payroll this month when no appropriation was made. The prosecutor said the position has not been abolished, contrary to reports.

Others who attended the bar meetings included Judge W. F. Lones, Francis Lang of East Liverpool and Don W. Elliott of Lisbon. Stouffer took part in the American Bar, the Ohio State Bar and the Prosecutors' associations conferences.

Odd Science

Leading Scientists Also Play Numbers Game

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK — Some people use numbers to foretell the future.

But great mathematicians find numbers that describe the past. These numbers tell how the unseen part of the universe is made. They seem to come from some mysterious happening of billions of years ago.

One of these queer mathematical numbers is described in the British science journal, "Nature," by Prof.

E. Schroedinger, one of the world's greatest mathematical thinkers.

The number is 10 to the 39th or 40th power. It is 1 followed by 39 or 40 zeros. This number has shown up in unexpected ways in computations of the extent of the universe.

Astronomers suspect the number is the count of all the "mass particles"—that is, the heavy fundamental particles of matter—forming the whole universe. These heavy particles are protons and neutrons. If electrons are counted the particles are then number one followed by nearly 100 zeros.

Prof. Schroedinger finds a possible new justification for the 10-39th power number in the apparent fact that this number of heavy particles would be just about enough to stop radiation from completely crossing the universe. Where there is no radiation, it is thought there probably is no matter.

BASS CAUGHT IN HAT

DEATHS and FUNERALS

Charles W. Gamble

Funeral services for Charles W. Gamble, 15, who died in City hospital Thursday after a long illness, will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. from the Kelly funeral home in Pennsylvania ave. Rev. Moon of Jehovah's witnesses will officiate. Burial will be in the Calcutta U. P. church.

Mrs. Edward Buchanan

Mrs. Edward Buchanan, resident of Wellsville for the past 22 years, died at 4 a. m. today in her home at 2111 Buckeye ave. after a lingering illness. She was 52 and was born in French Creek, W. Va.

Mrs. Buchanan is survived by her husband, Ellis; two sons, Walter at home, and Earl of Akron; a daughter, Mrs. Marie Barnhart at home; three brothers, French Gillum of Tamaqua Pa., Glenn of Buchannon, W. Va., and Troy Gillum of Shinnston, W. Va., and two sisters, Mrs. Goldie Smith of Elkins, W. Va., and Mrs. Irene Curtis of Akron.

The body has been removed to the MacLean mortuary for funeral services Monday at 2 p. m. in the late residence. Rev. Harry Stevick of the Free Methodist church will officate. Burial will follow in Spring Hill cemetery.

LAND TRADE AND RADIO PLAN BEFORE COUNCIL

Little if any legislation will confront council when it meets Monday night, but discussion topics are not expected to be lacking.

A committee is expected to report on possibilities of "trading" Dorcas alley, east-west alley on the Y. M. C. A. lot on Bradshaw ave. for the frontal strip on the lot along Bradshaw ave.

A committee of councilmen next week will seek contributions for a proposed two-way police radio system here. The matter was introduced by James Welch, but the council has failed to appropriate. Several police officers and members of council have taken the examination for third class radio telephone operator in anticipation of installation of a headquarters station and transmitters in police cruisers.

Council may be asked to appropriate money to supplement individual contributions. The equipment would cost $1,500, with apparatus for cruisers of the city's three special officers costing approximately $350 each.

YOUNG G. O. P. TO HEAR OHIO SENATOR MONDAY

Verner E. Metcalf of Marietta, state senator and Republican candidate for attorney general, will address an open meeting Monday at 8 p. m. in Young Republican clubrooms in the Metz building.

Metcalf, lone Republican on the senate graft investigation committee, is the only G. O. P. member from southeastern Ohio seeking state office. Born on a farm in Washington county in 1893, he attended Ohio university, taught school and was admitted to the bar in 1920 after studying law at Ohio Northern university.

First elected to the state senate in 1934, Mr. Metcalf was returend to office in the 1936 Democratic landslide the sole Republican re-elected. During his years in the senate he served on finance, taxation, rules, judiciary and other committees and is Republican floor leader of the body.

UNION CALLS RECESS IN SUSPENSION TRIAL

U.A.W.A. Factions Continue To Exchange Charges

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 30—Trial of four suspended officers of the United Automobile Workers was in recess today until next Saturday, but spokesmen for rival factions within the U. A. W. A. continued an acrimonious exchange of charges.

Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W. A., said in an address at a union meeting last night that the "defendants," if convicted, would be expelled from membership in the union as well as from office.

Guards who patroled the aisles during the meeting ejected one man who booed as Martin began to speak.

Defendants in the trial before the U. A. W. A. executive board, which was halted yesterday by the board's decision to have all evidence filed in affidavit form, are Richard T. Frankensteen, Ed Hall, Wyndham Mortimer and Walter N. Wells, suspended vice presidents. They are charged with conspiring with Communists to seize control of the union.

Maurice Sugar, defense counsel, commenting on the sudden change in procedure, said: "Whoever heard of a trial without witnesses? The American public is learning about Hitler technique at home."

MOTOR VACATIONERS TO SPEND 4 BILLION

WASHINGTON — A record-breaking number of motor vacationers will spend $4,000,000,000 this summer, according to estimates of the American Petroleum Institute.

The Institute believes the sum will be divided about like this:

Transportation expenses, 20 percent; hotels and tourist camps, 20 percent; retail purchases such as clothing, camping equipment and sporting goods incidental to vacations, 25 percent; meals, 21 percent, and amusements and refreshments, 14 percent.

About $240,000,000 will be spent on road side refreshments, the institute predicts, while $75,000,000 will be absorbed by taxes.

William L. Hart

VOTERS of Columbiana county have a particular interest in the campaign of their neighbor, William L. Hart of Alliance, for Republican nomination to make the race for the state supreme court this year.

Mr. Hart is an earnest, capable lawyer who says frankly it is his ambition to bring his career to a climax by serving on the supreme bench for a full term. Previously, he was elected to a short term.

In 1936, Mr. Hart made an intensive campaign of the whole state to win his party's nomination. He was edged out at the polls in November by only a few thousand votes out of a total of more than 307,000. It was an excellent showing — a tribute to an honest, straightforward campaign by a man who had nothing to run on but his own integrity and personality.

It has been this newspaper's privilege in the past to call attention to the fact that Mr. Hart is well qualified for the office he seeks. With no less enthusiasm because he lost by a few thousand votes two years ago, it repeats that he would make an excellent judge of the state supreme court.

What Kind Of Standards?

APPARENTLY a good deal of honest soul searching on the lawyer's place in a modern world was done during the American Bar association convention in Cleveland.

The extent of the association's concern with the problem of maintaining a high standard for lawyers is perhaps fairly indicated by Owen J. Roberts, U. S. Supreme Court justice.

Justice Roberts believes "character standards should be set up and enforced before youths are allowed to become candidates for the bar." He advocates more stress on "moral qualifications."

Unfortunately, there's no way of telling what kind of a lawyer a law school graduate seeking admittance to the bar is going to be—no more than there's any way of telling what kind of businessmen, technicians, bankers, artists, teachers and government obholders the members of any graduating class will be.

The laywer, like everyone else, finds his natural level. Instead of trying to predetermine who the misfits will be, the logical solution to the problem which Justice Robers sees would seem to be to weed them as soon as they identify themselves.

When lawyers begin to do that there won't be any problem.

Gentlemen's Code

ENOUGH vacations have been spent on lakes and rivers by this time to make fish story-telling competition vigorous. There's no use wasting breath unless the bass weighed at least four pounds, or jumped over the boat.

If it's a muskie—and of course a fellow hasn't fished until he's caught a muskie—it must be a monster of the deep which comes up under the boat and tries to gnaw a hole in it. A wall-eyed pike isn't even pan fish unless it measures from here to here and was seen holding to a red-head plug with its front fins in order to get a free ride up the edge of the boat.

The eyes of the returned vacationers sparkle as they tell these stories, but their faces never betray the shadow of a doubt. They have an obligation to the brothers whose fishing for the summer of 1938 still lies before them—an obligation not to let the brothers know the fish aren't bigger or more vicious this year than ever before.

It's a gentlemen's code they follow—like a father trying to keep Junior from bruising his tender sensibilities on the hard truth about Santa Claus.

Automobiles In The Lead

ONE of the brightest bits of business news in a long time is the report that an automobile shortage next September is probable.

Manufacturers already are closing down for changeovers to new models, which are expected to incorporate many new and interesting features. Latest production index for the industry is 36.3, which may be compared with 99.7 for the same time last year.

Dealer inventories have been declining steadily since last March. They will be reduced in the near future, it is believed now, to a minimum which will make the filling or orders extremely difficult, beginning in August.

To supply the accumulated demand which will be created, manufacturers are expected to move forward the time of producing new models. In previous years, following the moving forward of the date in 1935 from January to November, production did not get under way till November and December. It is foreseen that this year it may start to reach a seasonal peak in October. This will mean a pickup in employment starting in August and continuing through September.

Ever since 1936, when the automobile industry led the recovery parade, there has been a widespread conviction recovery will come about the next time in the same way. With a yearly employment peak in September and a production peak in October in prospect for the auto industry, belief that things are going to pick up in all the regions affected by automobile production become almost a foregone conclusion.

The United States forest service now uses a newly invented "danger meter" to warn forest rangers when conditions in forests become so dangerous that fires are likely to occur.

Sparring Again

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE vigorous nose-pulling indulged in by Russia and Japan the last few days, over a Soviet-Manchukuoan border "incident," was largely in the nature of trial-balloon flying—each trying to find out whether the other was in a mood for a real scrap.

These two old enemies do this sort of thing about once in so often—looking for possible weakness—on the theory strongly held in both capitals that a Russo-Japanese war is inevitable sooner or later.

The latest bit of sparring revolved about the occupation by Russian troops of a piece of ground claimed by both the Soviet and Manchukuo. It was asserted that the Muscovites were fortifying this hill.

Japan, as overlord of Manchukuo, promptly told Moscow in doggy language to get off that lot—or else. Soviet Foreign Minister Litvinoff responded in almost so many words that Japan might scare others, but couldn't get away with big-stick stuff in dealing with Russia.

That's where the matter stands now—with Japan denying any intention of pressing the dispute. Each country is busy assaying the results of this clash to see if there's any information worth while in it.

So far as the disputed zone is concerned, neither country would fight over its actual value. It may be worth a bit more than a township site in the Sahara desert. However, it would furnish ample cause for war if the two countries decided that the time had arrived for a trial at arms.

IN Tokyo there were warlike anti-Soviet demonstrations. The newspaper Hochi said: "If this (Soviet) outrage has been committed under a misunderstanding as to Japan's strength Russia shortly will repent the mistake." Said the Asahi: "Soviet Russia's challenge to Japan and Manchukuo for a fight seems inevitable."

Certainly Toyko and Moscow have no delusions about the danger of the situation. We hear so much about the war in China that we are inclined to forget Japan is maintaining perhaps a half million of her very best fighting men in Manchukuo, ready for any eventuality. Many times these troops have been badly needed in China, but the Japanese high command has declined to move them.

Industries are working on a wartime basis in Manchukuo. The most elaborate network of railways in the east has been built right up to the Russian frontier. Big guns and other sinews of war have been collected ready for action. A very considerable air force (only the Japanese authorities can say how big) has been assembled.

Russia claims to be all set for defensive action against anybody, come one, come all. So far as the east is concerned, the Soviet stated a year ago that she had 400,000 well equipped troops in that area. And other forces have been moved there since then.

Apart from tanks, the big army is supported by an air fleet estimated at 1,000 to 1,500 planes, and a submarine base at Vladivostok where at least 60 submersibles are quartered—maybe more. The total Russian air fleet has been estimated at 10,000 ships—but that is largely guesswork.

It is generally conceded, however, that Russia has a huge air armada and that it probably represents the greatest immediate threat to Nippon in event of war. Japan is only a short flight from Siberia and bombers could raise havoc with the lightly constructed Japanese buildings.

THE ultra-conservative British house of lords, which ordinarily is too proud for common gossip, has kicked over the traces and ventured to discuss with shocking abandon the forbidden subject of England's war-debt to America.

Once blueblood is heated up it is about the same as any ordinary blood and the noble lords spoke right out with thoughts which they were not supposed to express and which some of them even now may regret.

The consensus of nobility was that John Bull ought to pay his bill.

England several years ago stopped making even token payments. So did all the rest owing us war-debts, with the exception of little Finland. When Finland's distinguished foreign minister, Dr. Rudolf Holsti, was here recently I asked him why his country persisted in paying its bill to us. He replied simply that it was because Finland had promised to pay.

The debate in lords called attention to the fact that the war-debt controversy had caused friction between Britain and the United States. The speakers might have gone further and said that few previous issues have caused so much resentment in the mind of the man in the street in both countries.

THE argument isn't all on one side apparently. If you think we have a grievance, you should hear the Englishman tell his story, as I did time and again during my many years of residence in Europe. He has been quite as annoyed over the matter as have we.

However, the feeling has been growing in England that the matter has gone far enough and that there should be an adjustment. The average Briton wants to pay, though he doesn't think he should be asked to pay the whole bill as originally set down.

Many observers are beginning to recognize, too, that the war-debt controversies have to a certain degree contributed to a situation which has resulted in broken treaties and obligations in other spheres.

The Briton advances numerous arguments against paying the full indebtedness, some of them funny and some intensely annoying to the "hundred percent" American. One naive approach is that the United States is big and rich and can afford to stand the loss.

Another argument is that this expenditure was America's just share in the war, since she "came in late."

Then they say that the war-debt owed to Britain, which are more than her debt to us, have been suspended. England has agreed not to ask her debtors to pay more than she pays the United States. Another claim of the Englishman is that the only way this country could pay for war debt would be in goods, and we won't accept 'em.

Propaganda's Out

By ANDRUE BERDING

(How would an influx of propaganda from the United States affect our relations with other republics in the western hemisphere? The state department's attitude is outlined in the following article, second of two on Latin American relations).

A WELL-INFORMED official described the administration today as determined to avoid a war of propaganda in Latin America against the totalitarian nations of Europe.

He said the cornerstone of the department's program for developing "good neighbor" relations would be, in effect:

The United States, as a government, will not carry on propaganda in South America, regardless of what the European nations do there.

The official said the new cultural division of the state department, set up to improve relations with Latin America, would have two principal functions:

1. Determination of policies to be followed toward bringing Uncle Sam in closer and friendlier contact with his Spanish cousins to the south.

2. Coordination of the activities of other branches of the government and of private organizations seeking to increase the economic, political and cultural exchanges with Latin America.

It will not seek, of itself, to place propaganda in South America. In this respect the state department is listening to the advice of its representatives in Latin America and travelers who have returned from there.

This advice is that the United States stands to gain more from friendly actions toward Latin America, from a continuance of the good neighbor policy and from a cultivation of cultural relations than it does from direct propaganda, whether by radio, by newspapers, by lecturers or by subsidizing local activities.

Forty Years Later

FORTY years ago, the Spanish-American war was raging toward a climax.

Those were tumultuous days. As Walter Millis has described them in "The Martial Spirit," they were days in which Americans became suddenly aware of their national strength and began to take stock in a national destiny which would cover half the surface of the world.

Out in Emporia, Kan., one day recently, a veteran newspaper editor, William Allen White, sat down to write the following lines interesting as a reminder that not all Americans were in agreement in 1898. The following is from The Emporia Gazette. Mr. White's newspaper:

"Reading in this morning's Kansas City Times, we find in the Forty Years Ago column, this item:

"Bill White of Emporia, according to a Kansas note, is the only Kansan opposed to the war.

"It was the Spanish-American war. The Gazette opposed that war then because it was a needless war. When we went into the war, Spain was obviously trying to do everything a nation could do to grant the concessions which America asked for Cuba.

"INDEED, after the war and after McKinley's death, it was found in the archives of the government that Spain had completely surrendered to every demand made by President McKinley before we declared war.

"Americans were rallickabooed into it, swept off their feet by talk of patriotism and pure propaganda and nonsense. It was a wicked, unnecessary war. It did us no good and took us out of our place as a continental democracy into a world power.

"It was the forerunner of our entrance into the World war. For we had built up an international economy which, as a world power, we had to defend.

"There are no ifs in history. But we can speculate at least on what might have happened if we had taken what Spain generously offered—the independence of Cuba—and had stayed out of the war. We would not have the festering spot of Puerto Rico.

"We would not be in the Pacific, tangled in an unpublished but unquestioned alliance with Great Britain which will draw us eventually into war with Japan.

Ohio Anecdotes

DURING Gen. Anthony Wayne's campaign into the Ohio wilderness, he encamped one day along the south side of St. Marys river intending to erect a fort. Wayne's encampment was near the place where the highway to the north of Celina to Van Wert crosses the St. Marys river.

Although hostile Indians were plentiful in the area, Gen. Wayne and his men exposed themselves heedlessly in order to complete the work. The general was crushed to the earth by a falling beech tree and the soldiers who placed him up thought he was dead. The army was in a critical position, but the officers took charge, ordering sentries posted for a night's encampment.

Wayne, however, recovered sufficiently by morning to give the order to march. Although wounded and forced to decide which of three routes to take, the general chose the route to Grand Galize. Four days later upon arrival, the choice proved to be a wise one, for the enemy was taken by surprise and fled, leaving the stronghold to the Americans.

Political History

By PRESTON GROVER

OLD line Kentucky politicians would be glad for a return of the old days when outside interference in primaries was limited, when a candidate battled alone for his nomination and the state counted the dead and wounded before it tabulated the vote.

The Barkley-Chandler contest isn't following that pattern.

Time was when Kentucky primaries were little short of revolutions, but gradually there grew up a system in which each candidate worked for himself. He claimed little aid from national or state administrations, depending instead upon his own organization and friends.

Our information is that such was especially true regarding U. S. senators until Gov. Chandler bowled over the idea in 1936 by turning his state organization against Sen. Logan, without success.

Chandler has made Kentucky political history ever since in 1935 at the age of 37 he whipped an opposing state organization under Gov. Ruby Laffoon and won the Democratic nomination for governor.

He paved the way for this feat by calling a special session of the legislature when Gov. Laffoon left the state, leaving Chandler, then lieutenant governor, in charge.

The legislature, following Chandler's lead, instituted a general primary, which partly nullified the force of Lafoon's state organization. Chandler's victory over Laffoon's candidate, Thomas S. Rhea, was an amazing upset and split the party so widely that both Senators Barkley and Logan had to rush to Kentucky to campaign in the general elections for Chandler. They switched the campaign to national issues to prevent a party split that might have meant a Republican victory.

AT that time Chandler's nomination and election were hailed as new deal victories, since Laffoon had broken with Roosevelt.

That title of "Happy" was not given Chandler for nothing. He is a back-slapping, mammy-singing campaigner with a friendly way that charms even some of his political opponents. But he is no political peacemaker. His history is studded with battling headlines.

Friends of Sen. Logan say that in 1936 Chandler promised "hands off" in the primary. Instead he not only put up his own candidate, former Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, but brought upon himself charges from a third candidate, Rep. John Young Brown, that he had failed him of promised support.

Barkley associates now say that Chandler once agreed not to enter the lists against Kentucky's senior senator, only to decide later to seek the job himself.

The whole picture has changed in three years. In 1935, Chandler's election was declared to have "saved Kentucky for Roosevelt in 1936." This year President Roosevelt moves in to Kentucky in an effort to defeat Chandler and save Barkley. In 1935, Republicans protested WPA workers were directed to help Chandler. Now Chandler charges WPA is being used against him.

To a degree the situation has put Chandler in a false light. He is spotlighted as the candidate of Roosevelt's enemies. Yet he continues to profess his loyalty to the President.

So much of the betting money is on Barkley that some observers thought Chandler could have guaranteed himself a political future by withdrawing with the explanation that he had been put in the false position of opposing Roosevelt. But Chandler is not waiting for futures.

Bible Sales Hold Up

SALES of the Bible have been phenomenal in one part of the globe this year.

A report from the British and foreign Bible society singles out the situation for special mention. It seems that there has never been such a demand during a comparable period.

"In the first quarter of our current fiscal year," a spokesman states, "we sold 2,040 Bibles . . . . The total of Bibles, Gospels, and separate books of the Scriptures we sold in this period was approximately 9,200."

The spokesman goes on to state that the sales figures would have been much larger if the salesmen hadn't encountered certain difficulties in getting about. Difficulties like bombed railroad stations and shelled bridges.

The sales report refers to Spain, where men are busy blasting one another off the face of the earth.

"Well if it isn't my old school teacher that taught me how to write."

Napoleon's Height Was Just What His Contemporaries Thought It Was Over His Stormy European Career

By DAMON RUNYON

THE PUBLIC PRINTS of London have revived an old discussion as to the height of Napoleon Bonaparte, the fellow who once tried to play all the positions on his ball club at one and the same time. He did all right when it came to catching.

Napoleon Bonaparte was Mussolini without a bald head and Hitler and Stalin without a mustache. He has sometimes been depicted by historians as a little chap who wore high-heeled shoes to make himself appear taller, like those sawed-off fellows in the movies when they are cast alongside lady giraffes. His height has been put at 5 feet 3½ inches, but we always thought the historians got Napoleon mixed up with someone else.

Here lately an English jobbie had doped it out that Napoleon must have been 5 feet 4 inches at the very least, taking a guess at the measurement from some spy holes at St. Helena which Napoleon used when he was in stir there to take peeks at his guards. Here again, we think is error. We have our own private measurements on Napoleon, which we would have gladly placed at the disposal of the historians had we ever been asked. In no case do our figures approximate those which have appeared in print.

Napoleon Bonaparte's height was strangely variable. He was practically a freak in that respect, as is indicated by the fact that whereas the Englishman who measured the spy holes could give him but a theoretical 5 feet 4, which is about the length of a bantam-weight champion, other Englishmen saw him as at least 100 feet nigh when they first put him on St. Helena.

AROUND 1799, when he was made first consul of France, Napoleon was about as tall as Sen. McAdoo. In 1804 his stature had increased to such an extent that they had to get carrier pigeons to fly the crown of emperor of France to his head. He was a regular high pockets then, sure enough.

The only fellow around who did not seem to be scared by Napoleon's height was a chap named Nelson, who took a fall out of him at Trafalgar. Still, Napoleon kept on growing, assisted by a series of exercises that included chasing Austrians, Russians and Germans all over the landscape.

By 1812, his stature was such that if you had stood him alongside the Empire State building he would have had to reach down to carve his initials on the flag pole. Yes sirs and ma'ams he was sure a tall fellow. He got rid of his wife, Josephine, who was too short for him by that time and took on a higher one by the name of Marie Louise of Austria.

Well, in 1812 he was so tall he did not have room where he was to step around in, so he decided to go over into Russia and loosen up his legs on the wide open spaces there. He got himself together a bunch of 500,000 men, the largest army ever led by any European general up to that time, and away he went. He was plenty tall then.

HE got to Moscow only to find the Russians had committed arson and burned the town, so he had to start back home. That is when his height commenced to shorten up, probably contracted by the cold.

By the time he got back to France he was so short he could have ridden a mouse around the corner, to pilfer a phrase from Bugs Baer in describing how he once felt in a moment of embarrassment.

Russia, Prussia, Austria and Sweden took one look at Napoleon and said to each other, "Goodness sakes we have been letting a midget scare us." So they ganged up on the dwindled Napoleon and gave him such an awful shoving around that in 1914 at Fontainebleau he abdicated the throne of France.

They sent him to the island of Elba and right then he was no taller than Shirley Temple. Inside of a year, however, he began growing again, and he suddenly bobbed up in France as higl as a haystack.

The duke of Wellington and Blucher caught up with him at Waterloo and carved him down to the height of a turtle. After that Napoleon's growth was stunted for good.

Perhaps we have been a trifle sketchy in our own history of a celebrated character, but then we have been dealing mainly with the matter of Napoleon's length from end to end. If he measured up to the height the books which have been written about him would reach, if piled one upon the other, he would be the tallest man who ever lived.

We don't consider his shrinkage anything abnormal. We have had many similar instances in this country. To cite a recent case, we can remember when a certain Richard Whitney of Wall Street seemed as high as a steeple. The last time we looked, he had shrunk down to where he could walk under a dachshund without stooping.

Democracy On Parade

(An Editorial In The New York Times)

A SINCERE compliment one can pay to autocratic governments is that they put on effective parades. Democracies sometimes seem too loose jointed for that sort of thing. Yet when they take the pains to dress up they can stage a show that would be good boxoffice anywhere.

Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini surely missed a bet if they didn't have customers, stage designers and production directors on hand to make notes when King George and Queen Elizabeth landed in France. Nothing that could add to the perfection of the occasion seems to have been omitted.

King George debarked in an admiral's regalia and changed from that to a field marshal's red jacket. Members of the French Academy glittered like stars on a frosty night. Turbaned Spahis, Zouaves and republican guards in golden helmets shone splendidly in the horizon-blue pattern of marching troops. Seventy-five of the best waiters in Paris served luncheon in the Hall of Mirrors, dressed in blue and scarlet liveries, with white silk stockings and powdered wigs. Berlin or Rome couldn't have done it better, and neither could Hollywood.

If this display had been intended to glorify a ruler or a ruling caste, it might have seemed barbaric. But neither the British king nor the French president is a ruler in the literal sense. The ceremonies and parades were the exhuberant demonstrations of two democracies, whose people often fail to understand each other but which are linked by common interests. There was no sullen undertone of suppression and resentment.

In a day or so the two democracies will be back in shirt sleeves again. In each the parade is an occasional thing, enjoyed for its spectacular qualities. Neither makes life itself one long parade, goes to work in uniform and damns the man who falls for an instant out of step.

Spotty Sun, Spotty Market

DON'T blame sun spots any more for warts or stock market losses. The sun spot cycle which was being blamed for so many things, has been completed. Dr. Harlan T. Stetson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology says the cycle reached a maximum in July, 1937. There was a decline till last December, then another rise which reached its maximum in February. Dr. Stetson thinks this was the end of the cycle.

Such cycles usually last an average of 11.3 years. The latest one, if Dr. Stetson is right, is 2.3 years short of the average.

During maximum periods of sun spots there is a small decrease in the amounts of heat and light received. This has been used for relating cycles in weather, agriculture, animal breeding and even stock market activity to the sun spot cycle. Adherents of this theory point to a correspondence in time between the downward trend of the sun spot cycle in 1929 and the crash of the stock market that year; and to the downward curve of the sun spot cycle from its peak a year ago this month to a break in the stock market. A minor break in the market followed the minor sun spot peak in February, also.

SUNDAY SERVICES IN DISTRICT CHURCHES

LUTHERANS PLAN OUTING AT PARK

14 Brotherhoods Will Take Part In Wednesday Event

A rally of Lutheran men from 14 churches in the Ohio and Beaver valleys will begin at 3 p. m. Wednesday in Thompson park as the August event of the 75th anniversary year of celebration of the founding of Lutheranism in America.

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church is sponsoring the Lutheran brotherhood picnic, last monthly eventi n which Rev. F. Eppling Reinartz, pastor, will participate before leaving to accept a post in the national church organization.

A crowd well over 100 is expected for the gathering, annual affair that drew 110 last year when the brotherhood of the local church put on its own program

With delegations expected from Leetonia and Salem, New Brighton, Beaver Falls, Monaca, Ambridge, Aliquippa, Conway and Freedom, Pa., the refreshment committee is preparing extra lemonade, ice cream and sandwiches.

A Sunday schol picnic marked the July observation of the anniversary by the local church. Confirmation and congregational dinner were June observances.

Winners of games between two Pennsylvania teams and Salem and East Liverpool teams will meet in a softball championship. Horseshoe pitching, volleyball and races also are planned by the sports committee composed of Henry Schneidmiller, Saul McCoy, Allen Peppin, Clyde Smith and Norman Hall.

E. W. Shirley, president of St. John's brotherhood, is general chairman of the picnic committee. Refreshments are in charge of Oron Schultz, Carl Viegel, Eugene Schneidmiller, Nick Schultz, Edward Rose, E. M. Troutman, Nolan Herrin, George Spratley, Luther Gilbert, Gordon Brick and Clarence Lamp.

A brief business session of the local brotherhood will follow the dinner.

Loon Habits

"I KNOW," said Willy Nilly, "that sometimes a mother loon, in trying to lead the enemy away from her baby, has been known to lose the little one. You must not do that, Mother Loon. We'll go with you if you're not afraid. We will not harm you."

Willy Nilly and the Puddle Muddlers started to follow the mother loon, but she went in the opposite direction from that in which was her baby. Then she seemed to understand that Willy Nilly was different. He had a special charm. She felt it—and she led him toward the part of the lake where her baby was waiting for her.

Willy Nilly knew that at one time there must have been another baby loon—and so it was no wonder that the mother had been particularly nervous about this one.

But now she perched on a low bush. Her short, stiff tail, her long beak and the outline of her body could barely be seen in the night light.

Only Mrs. Quacko noticed that she had webbed feet, too.

"I have on my summer feathers," Mother Loon said. "In the winter I wear a simple gray. In the summer I prefer black and white."

Her voice was still shaky, but not from fear. It was her natural way of speaking and as the Puddle Muddlers settled themselves for sleep they heard her laughing as she few across the water with her baby; and her laugh was loud and happy.

"Wa - oooo'- wa-oooooo -wa - waoooooo," she laughed. "I was foolish to be frightened."

The Puddle Muddlers went to sleep.

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 31

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a rather perplexing one, with many signs of a subtle, mysterious or intriguing nature transpiring in the private affairs, but signs for enterprise and activity in other affiliations. It is probable that there may be peculiar entanglements in relations to elders, possibly in a sentimental way or involving some subtle undercurrents.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a year of rather unusual, secret or singular adventures or experiences, in which elders seem to have importance. Intrigue, romance or mystery prevails, although the facilities and forces may be under high pressure for success and attainment in a business way. Move discreetly in all affairs.

A child born on this day may have a rather profound and subtle nature, although being mentally alert, enterprising and energetic, its success being largely in cultural or professional channels.

For Monday, August 1

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a rather difficult day, with much to impede, thwart and confuse. Finances and credit may be involved, with the most promising situations coming through hard work and sound judgment, especially where the element of justice be involved.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of some difficulties and possible financial embarrassments in which industry, application and good judgment may save the day. Private affairs may offset such perplexing and disconcerting situations.

A child born on this day may be hard-working and dependable, although rather eccentric, high strung, nervous and difficult to understand. It may have its crafty, shrewd and peculiar methods of attaining its ends, and may require sympathetic handling, owing to its sensitiveness.

Old Master Brings Back Uproarious Sennett Type Comedy In Latest Film, 'Professor Beware'

The old master, Harold Lloyd, has done it again, brought back the screen's most successful type of film, Sennett comedy, in "Professor Beware," now at the Columbia theater, one of the most uproarious films in years.

Now that Charlie Chaplin has retired, Lloyd alone remains of the old guard to keep this ancient and honorable form of dramatic art alive, and he proves there is no one more capable.

Phooey on your cocktail comedies, your gay repartee in Park ave. flats, you'll never know how you've longed for a good old belly-laugh until this one rolls you in the aisles, and it is safe to say that it will draw more repeats than any film this year; you just can't see it all the first time.

The story, just strong enough to hold the riot together, is about an Egyptologist who has translated eight ancient tablets telling the story of a princess who sends her commoner lover, to his death. Lloyd believes he is the reincarnation of this commoner, and when he meets Phyllis Welch, he believes she is the girl who will be his doom. She falls in love with him, and for the rest of the film tries to overcome the myth so he will marry her.

There is little comment needed. The audience began to giggle in the first few minutes and from then on roared. With Lloyd are some of Hollywood's best clowns, William Frawley in a priceless drunk scene and Lionel Stander and Raymond Walburn as the professor's hobo pals, and many others.

This Phyllis Welch, now, she is a one to watch. She makes a perfect foil for the gags. She is not pretty, but is utterly charming.

But of course the whole show is the old master; he is at his slapstick best. He is a smart man, too, the way he comes around once in about two years with this sort of thing. You never get tired of him. Of course he takes an awful beating for the dough he will get, but Maxie took a worse one for a whole lot less.—C. L.

New Shows

Presenting the beautiful international star, Danielle Darrieux in her initial American screen role, "The Rage of Paris," a dashing romantic comedy, comes to the State theater today.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., is co-starred with the versatile French actress who appeared in some of Europe's most distinguished films, including the prize winning "Mayerling," before going to Hollywood. Among the featured players, Mischa Auer has the comedy role of a bewildered waiter. Helen Broderick, famous screen and Broadway stage comedienne, plays the part of a humorous, worldly-wise actress and Louis Hayward is Fairbanks' rival.

Properly to present Miss Darrieux, whose beauty and talent have captured the imagination of millions abroad, production officials have supported the star with brilliant cast including Charles Coleman, Samuel S. Hinds, Nella Walker and Harry Davenport. Henry Koster, who wrote the stories of some of Miss Darrieux' biggest French hits before winning directorial fame here with the first two Durbin films, directed the picture. Buddy De Sylva was the producer.

PALESTINE KIWANIS TO ENTERTAIN CLUBS

10th Division Groups To Be Guests At Party Aug. 10

Special To The Review.

EAST PALESTINE, July 30 — P. C. Hawk is chairman of the committee in charge of plans for an inter-city Kiwanis meeting for the 10th division Wednesday, Aug. 24, at the East Palestine Country club.

The meeting will launch the fall season for Kiwanis groups in this section, after the summer season lull. During July and for the most of August local meetings here take place at restaurants without special programs.

Meetings are held at noon now, but night sessions will resume with the inter-city gathering.

Other members of the committee are F. E. Owen, Roy V. Beck, C. D. Brittain, J. C. Donaldson and J. H. Irwin.

"THE Philippines by this time would have been either Japanese or an independent country, probably under a Dutch or British protectorate. We have spent millions, hundreds of millions for defenses in the Philippines. These defenses have come out of our own taxes.

"How much happier we would have been confined in our own borders, building up our own internal trade, making our own people happy, keeping out of all foreign wars, spending less than one-third of the taxes we now spend on armament and defenses in the Pacific.

"The Gazette was not all-wise 40 years ago in opposing the Spanish-American war. The Gazette saw only what millions of Americans saw. It was not swept off its feet by the roll of drums and the fluttering of flags and the bugle's shrill command. We have no desire to be self-righteous. Yet nevertheless it is a bit of a comfort."

SIDELITES OF LIFE

By The Associated Press.

Honk Helps

NORTH VERNON, Ind. — Brack Coomer's wrecked automobile saved his life by summoning help.

Coomer, 32, of Dayton, O., was knocked unconscious when the car left a bridge near here and caught fire.

The flames started the horn blowing, however, and attracted a farmer to the scene. He pulled Coomer—suffering from rib fractures—out of the burning car.

Prize Question

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Inquisitive tourists ask some queer questions about John D. Rockefeller Jr's restoration of Virginia's colonial capital, but restoration guides say this one is tops:

"I want to see the house of burgesses," a woman visitor demanded. "My mother was a Burgess."

Long-Range Planning

VANCOUVER, Wash.—Levi Huhta and Alma Neimi of Astoria, Ore., are not ones to dash into wedlock.

They were married this week.

They obtained their license Sept. 20, 1922.

Crime Will Out

WALSENBURG, Colo.—Johnny Kimbell's pet bull snake was uncomfortable although it rested in a soft nest in the hen house it kept free of rats.

Kimbel detected a bulge in his pet's mid-section, suspected the snake had turned egg thief.

Holding the reptile head-down, Kimbel worked at the bulging object. Out popped a wooden nest egg.

OHIO TO VOTE IN 8,601 PRECINCTS IN PRIMARY

Addition of a precinct in Salem is the only change in Columbiana county for the Aug. 9 primaries, William J. Kennedy, secretary of state, said today in announcing the state has 8,601 precincts for the ballotting.

The addition of precinct D to ward 1, Salem was made by the election board when precinct C, same ward, drew more than 700 votes in the 1936 general elections. The maximum is 450 under the law. There are 111 precincts in the county.

EAST END LODGE FETE DRAWS LARGE THRONG

More than 1,500 attended the Ohio City festival of the Pennova Odd Fellows' lodge and Rebekahs Friday night in the Goodwin property in East End.

E. B. Laughlin, lodge chairman, said it was the outstanding event of the series. A penny social was held and merchandise awards were made. Music was furnished by the 15-piece orchestra of the Second Presbyterian church.

The lodge said proceeds will be used to further the welfare work of the organization.

COLUMBIANA

Miss Miriam Forbes of Salem entertained a group of friends at her home in Columbiana honoring Miss Caroline Webber of Salem, who will marry Russell Limestahl today at the Salem M. E. church.

The annual pre-school clinic sponsored by the P.-T. A. will be held at the school Tuesday. Children entering the first grade will be given free examinations.

The local Girl Scout troop, supervised by Miss Mae Ashman, held a picnic at Firestone park recently. Five girls passed tenderfoot tests and will become troop patrol leaders for next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kyser and niece are on a motor trip to Michigan and Canada.

The following promotions in troop 15 of the Boy Scouts have been announced: John Esterly and George Myers to Junior assistant scout masters; Fred Wilson to Senior patrol leader.

Henry Troll of Canton, well known here, is seriously ill at his home.

Dr. C. W. Kellog will leave today for a two-week post graduate course at the National Hospital in Chicago. His office will be closed until Aug 13.

Miss Lucille Funkhouser has resigned as music teacher in local school because of ill health. The board will call a special meeting to choose a successor.

The Towasi class of the Presbyterian church will hold a picnic at the open pavilion at Firestone park Wednesday at 6:30.

LISBON, July 30—Enrollments in the East Liverpool and Salem schools during the 1937-1938 term showed decreases, according to the school enumeration report now being compiled in the office of County Auditor John Irwin.

East Liverpool's enrollment totaled 6,080, including boys and girls between five and 18. There were 3,076 boys and 3,004 girls attending school. The total for the preceding period was 6,500.

The Salem enrollment was 2,642 compared with 2,679 tallied in the 1936-1937 term with 1,388 boys and 1,254 girls.

With the exception of one school district the enumeration is complete. The aggregate for the county will exceed 20,000 and is expected to be under figures for the corresponding period last year. The total to date is 19,466.

Enumeration on other cities and villages in the county includes: East Palestine, 1,251; Wellsville, 1,928; Columbiana, 572; Leetonia, 1,076; Lisbon, 938; East Rochester, 82; Kensington, 76; New Waterford, 239; Salineville, 505 and Summitville, 75.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. NYE

The Story So Far

A plot is on foot to smash the Rafter T, and "Blur" Ankrom takes a job there to help lovely Lee Trone. She saves his life by shooting an imposter, Kelton Drean, but he learns this only after Drean's accomplice, Betty causes trouble between them. Ratchford, the sheriff, tells Ankrom that Claydell, a neighboring rancher, is after the Trones' land because a railroad is going through. Ankrom accuses Claydell.

CHAPTER 26
Claydell's Answer

CLAYDELL'S bushy eyebrows drew sharply down above his yellow stare. The six-foot figure in his shiny black boots drew erect.

"Is this meant to be a joke?" he asked.

"Does it sound like a joke to you?"

"It sounds to me like the raving of a crazy man," Claydell said contemptuously. "Do you think I'd be fool enough to do such things for the sake of a party railroad right-of-way? Use your head!"

"I'm usin' it. Want to hear the rest?"

"If it will give you any relief to elaborate further, by all means spin ahead."

Ankrom nodded. "The railroad right-of-way is not the only thing you're after. You would indeed be a fool to risk so much for that. But that ain't all. You plan to build a town alongside the proposed tracks about half a mile from the valley housing Trone's home ranch. Your ultimate object is to dam Trone's valley in an attempt to boom Rafter T land to the bunch of home-seekers the railroad is going to entice in for you!"

"So!" Claydell expelled a cloud of smoke from his nostrils. "A likely yarn," he jeered. "The only difficulty is in getting people round here to swallow it. I think that's where you're going to run up against a snag, mister." A calculating gleam shone from the yellow eyes. "Mind telling me where you gathered all these notions? Did Ratchford unload them on you?"

"Why Ratchford?" Ankrom countered. "What's he got to do with it?"

"That's something I'd give a deal to know." Claydell inhaled deeply, held silent for some time while he regarded Ankrom through the smoke.

"I'll tell you something," he said at last. "Tom Ratchford's got it in for me. He'd like nothing better than to catch me mixed up on the wrong side of trouble. You see the point?"

Claydell took a turn about the room. He stopped to face Ankrom squarely. "Ratchford gave you these notions to focus your interest."

"Why would he want to do that?"

"How do I know? I told you he didn't like me. He's been laying for me for years. The Ratchfords are a breed who don't forget—"

"Don't forget what?" Ankrom cut in swiftly.

Claydell snorted. "Don't forget anything! Years ago there was a sort of range war in this country. The ranchers here were trying to keeep out nesters, squatters, homesteaders. They succeeded till Trone came in. He was a hell-bender and he brought a tough crowd with him. We couldn't budge 'em. I'm a sensible man, I hope. I saw the way things were going. I was losing money hand over fist. The fight was at a deadlock. I recognized that Trone would never be licked." He paused to search Ankrom's face with his yellow eyes, then said, "I threw in with Trone."

"An' come out on the winnin' side, eh?" There was a scornful curl to Ankrom's lips as he put the question.

'Ratchford's The One'

"Yes," he said. "Trone and I won out. Old Ratchford—Tom's father—tried to break us by bringing in sheep. He was the one that got broke—him and three-four others. But he took the biggest loss. Not long after the thing was finished he went out back of the house one day an' blew his brains out. Do you understand now why Ratchford's got it in for me?"

"What happened to Ratchford's sheep?"

"They were found one morning at the bottom of a canyon."

"Slick. Who had been in charge of 'em?"

"Sheepman named Boone Heffle. A surly devil an' still in the country, by the way."

"Not any longer he isn't," Ankrom said, and watched Claydell's face intently. "I killed him this afternoon.

Claydell showed surprise. But not more than anyone else would have shown under the circumstances. "Is that so? Why?"

"He was trying to jump the water at our southwest line camp. I mentioned it before."

"So you did. I take it then the Rafter T still controls that water. If you need any more men to hold it, let me know. I've sided Trone too long to let him down now. I'd—" He broke off abruptly, snapped his fingers.

"Say!" he exclaimed with more than usual enthusiasm. "I believe you've about solved it!"

"What are you talking about?"

"Those sheep! Heffle would never take it on himself to try jumping your water. A man who can be bought once can be bought again—an outfit that'll use sheep once will try 'em out again!"

"You mean—"

"Ratchford. Tom Ratchford, the sheriff, is the man you're looking for!"

Ankrom, as he sent the buckskin leisurely across the darkening range toward the Rafter T, was not convinced. Like his own accusations of Claydell, the rancher's case against Ratchford had a number of loopholes.

Both the sheriff and the boss of the Swinging J undoubtedly hated each other. But whether the reasons given by Claydell were the correct ones, Ankrom could not decide. It was quite possible that neither the sheriff nor Claydell were behind these things which were happening. Each, in their enmity, would naturally suspect the other.

Ankrom's thoughts shifted to Betty Struthers. It was plain to him now that her words to him concerning Lee and concerning the killing of Keiton Drean were deliberate lies. She had been seeking to prejudice him in her favor; to drive, if she could not lure him, away from Lee.

He recalled now Ratchford's statement that Drean had been killed by a slug from a forty-five caliber pistol. The one the golden girl had forced upon him had been a short-barreled thirty-two. How could he have missed the significance of this these many days? Why the girl had said herself under the sheriff's questioning that Drean used a thirty-two—she had forced upon him Akrom Drean's own gun!

He laughed shortly, "An artful baggage if I ever saw one—she'd ought to have taken up the stage!"

'What Happened?'

It was nearly time for the moon to rise when he reached the Rafter T. He stripped the gear from his buckskin, rubbed the moistness from the animal's coat. Turning the horse into the big corral he hung his saddle on the fence and went striding toward the lighted window that marked Trone's office in the house.

Trone looked up from some papers with a scowl as Ankrom entered. Ankrom saw that the gaunt old man had been drinking, for there was a bottle almost empty beside his elbow and his eyes were red and surly.

"Well," Trone grunted. "What happened? What's the matter with your ear? Did you drive them off?"

This was not the reception Ankrom had been expecting. He squared his shoulders. "Isn't Lee here?"

"Of course she's here! What's that got to do with what I asked you? What's the matter with your ear?"

"A bullet nipped it."

"Did you have a corpse an' cartridge occasion at the camp? What happened to the other fellow?"

"There was a little shootin,'" Ankrom admitted. "What other fellow are you talkin' about?"

"The fellow that knocked that slice from your ear."

"I didn't see. I was busy that particular time."

"Well, what happened?" Trone growled. "Say somethin'! Do I have to get a rope an' drag it from you?"

"I shot up two or three gents an' the rest cleared out."

Trone swore. "You tell it like a tea party! Is that all you got to say? Wasn't Heffle there? If he was I'm bettin' strong there was some action!"

"He was there." Ankrom's drawl was bitter. "His light was the first I blowed."

Trone's glance flashed excitement. "Good! I'd have give a year of my life to have seen that! I'm glad you cashed his chips. What else happened?"

"Nothing much. I wounded a couple other birds. The rest threw down their guns. I warned them off the Rafter T an' told 'em the next one caught would be shot on sight."

"Nothin' much happened, eh? You're a sight too modest."

"I'm not proud of this afternoon's work. Do you think I like to have folks pointin' me out on the street an' sayin' 'There goes that killer, Ankrom?'"

Trone's stare was intent. "Ankrom?" he said. "I thought your name was Streeter."

Ankrom laughed mirthlessly. "It doesn't matter. I'm Ankrom all right. One of them gun-slicks with Heffle's outfit recognized me—fellow named Bandera, a Mex renegade. I guess you'll be wantin' to pay me off."

"So you're Ankrom. I've heard a lot about you." Trone thrust his hand across the desk. "I'm glad to meet up with you. Why didn't you tell me who you were at the start?"

PALMS AND WHITE FLOWERS decorated the First Christian church of Zanesville Thursday afternoon, when Miss Helen Tincher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Tincher of South Zanesville, became the bride of Mr. Julian F. Benton of Zanesville, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Benton of McKinnon ave., East Liverpool.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. William Popp gave a brief organ recital including "I Love You Truly," (Bond), "Sweetest Story Ever Told" (Stults), and "Oh! Promise Me" (Dekoven). She played the Bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin" as the processional and Mendelssohn's Wedding march for the recessional. Mr. Arthur Sealover sang "At Dawning" (Cadman), and "Because" by D'Hardelot. During the reading of the marriage service by the pastor, Rev. Paul N. Runk, Mrs. Popp played "Love's Old Sweet Song."

The bride was gowned in dawn blue chiffon and she wore a small net hat with shoulder length veil. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Elise Jon McGuire of Zanesville, maid of honor, wore peach chiffon with a picture hat with peach streamers. Her flowers were talisman roses and delphinium.

Mr. Clinton Snyder of Zanesville was Mr. Benton's best man, and ushers included Mr. Leonard Payne of Follansbee, W. Va., and Mr. Ralph Engle of Zanesville.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Benton left immediately for a three-week honeymoon, touring Alabama. They will visit in Washington, D. C., enroute to their new home in Zanesville, where the bridegroom is manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Co.

Those attending the ceremony from here were Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Benton and Mr. and Mrs. Adam Tecca.

Men And Machines Rush 'Y' Playlot Work

WORKERS today pushed grading and other improvements on the Y. M. C. A.'s Bradshaw ave. playground site.

A crew of 14 youths of the NYA was cutting embankments on the property while a huge "bulldozer" —power grader—leveled off lumps in the field. About 4,000 cubic yards of material must be handled.

No date has been estimated for completion of the work on the former Knowles, Taylor and Knowles pottery site deeded to the "Y" in March by William H. Vodrey.

Work Started In April

Preliminary grading began in April, was delayed until June, when government approval for NYA participation was decided and continued when a total of 58 youths operating in shifts of 14 were assigned to the project.

Two weeks' operation of a steam shovel began to reduce the top end of the lot, 10 feet higher than the bottom end, by five feet.

The bulldozer grades dirt down toward the bottom of the lot, limited by Buckeye alley, to raise the lower level four and a-half feet. The half-foot difference between the top and bottom will aid drainage.

Each youth works 11½ hours a week or 46 hours a month, putting in four eight-hour and two seven-hour days monthly. The group has completed excavation and grading of the tiny tots' terrace facing on Avondale st., easternmost sector of the lot. Soon swings, slides and seesaws will be installed.

At present the youths are cutting back the bank on the corner of Minerva st., northern border of the lot, and Buckeye alley, western limit. They are placing the fill in the round brick wall base of an old gas pressure chamber used by the pottery and razed a few years ago. After being leveled with topsoil, the inside of the chamber will be made into marble courts.

A volleyball court will be placed between the chamber and the bank. Farther east along Minerva st. the bank will be terraced to provide a natural amphitheater for spectators.

Surface With Clay

Red clay from the center of the lot will be used to cover the entire playground. From Buckeye alley east along Bradshaw ave. two softball diamonds will be placed. Two tennis courts will be placed lengthwise east of the diamonds and along the Avondale st. embankment.

A retaining wall to hold the embankment below the tiny tots' terrace and protect a sewage line to be installed will be constructed from bricks found on the lot. The sewer will drain spring water and carry it to the Tanyard run storm sewer.

The bricks also may go to construct a bandstand to be erected near the embankment.

Approximately 30,000 bricks, remaining from the floor of an old clay bin, have to be taken up from their embedded position along Dorcas alley, east of Buckeye alley. Several feet of rusted rails, extension of the Horn Switch used by the pottery to ship ware by freight car also must be removed. Cinders used by the city for icy winter roads have been kept here in the past.

A second volleyball court and several horseshoe courts are planned. The full sweep of the entire lot may be used in fall for a football field.

Operations are under supervision of W. H. Nagel, general secretary of the "Y" and R. G. Bloor, NYA supervisor for Columbiana county.

songs and exercises. For the youngsters there was a circus. For Ford there was a gigantic cake from within which a small girl was to appear with a bouquet for him. Seventy-five other girls, each carrying a candle, were assigned to the ceremony.

At night a more formal celebration was arranged at the Masonic temple. Here city officials, manufacturing competitors and others will present formal tribute to Ford. Alex Dow, head of the Detroit Edison Co., who was Ford's employer in the early 90's when Ford was the company's chief engineer, will be toastmaster at the banquet.

CORRIGAN SAILS HOME; DREADS SEASICKNESS

Special To The Review.

COBH, Ireland, July 30—Douglas G. Corrigan, confessing fear of seasickness, started home by boat across the Atlantic over which he flew "by mistake" in his antiquated plane.

As the 31-year-old Californian embarked on the liner Manhattan he declared this was his first long boat trip and said he "hoped for the best but feared the worst."

He already had dismantled his plane and sent it back to the United States.

'UNLOADED GUN' FIRES AND HURTS LOCAL MAN

Darrel Foremen of East Liverpool forgot the old number one rule of handling firearms today, and shot a hole in a finger of his left hand while handling a gun "that wasn't loaded."

Foremen was cleaning the weapon this morning, while his finger was over the end of the barrel. The gun went off. He was given treatment in City hospital and discharged.

DEMOCRATS TO STAGE 2 RALLIES NEXT WEEK

The Eastern Ohio Democratic club in the Altman building on the Diamond will be the scene of rallies Sunday and Thursday.

Dan Rufo of Warren, state employe, and Sam Logrosso, Cleveland attorney, will speak to Columbiana county Italian Democrats Sunday at 1:30 p. m. F. A. Anania is chairman of the committee in charge. Plans for the Thursday night program have not been completed.

DAVEY

"Oh, that was a funny sound," the governor cracked. "That fellow must be in distress." He continued with "I have been a friend of labor all my life."

"You're a liar," and "Tom Girdler," were shouted by hecklers. "I am for the A. F. of L.," the governor said a little later. "Liar," came a voice from the audience. These were the only antagonistic echoes in the audience, responsible for occasional sparse applause and polite clapping.

Tells Of Ohio's Progress

The governor began his speech by telling about "progress made by the state during my administrations." He said $65,000,000 had been provided for relief, sales tax on food repealed, no new taxes added and six tax reductions voted. He said banking had been made more safe and that "more labor and other progressive legislation" had been passed than ever before." Payment of compensations by the industrial commission have been speeded up, he added.

Davey declared Ohio one of the few solvent states and praised the public school foundation law, with its $50,000,000 guarantee that schools will stay open. He dwelled at length on the state's institutions and their 38,000 inmates, saying they were being fed better and at reduced cost. He praised social security progress and called attention to unemployment insurance and payment of awards during 16 weeks following a layoff.

Davey's remarks did not go unanswered. Jacob Clayman, Niles attorney and campaigner for Sawyer, spoke after the governor had departed and told 200 in the Young Democrats' club, sponsor of the Davey rally, that the governor is dragging the red herring of Communism across the trail to befuddle the real issues.

"Shouts of 'Communism' are used merely to blur the issue," Clayman declared. "The red herring across the path is an old political trick. Thomas Mann says that the dictators of Europe in their propaganda are showing a cynical contempt for human nature and human hearts. When Davey waves the red flag simply to divert attention, it is an old trick, and people will rise in indignation.

"President Roosevelt calls for return of men of liberal texture and mind, sympathetic to the cause of the comman man and creation of a government with a soul," the Niles speaker continued. "That man who is the champion of the rights of others is Charley Sawyer."

Clendenning Introduces

M. L. Clendenning of Wellsville, Ohio Democratic executive board member-at-large, introduced party candidates at the club with the explanation that during primaries, the club policy was "not to bar speakers from either side." Charles Kraus Jr. head of the Wellsville Young Democratic club, presided.

Clayman was introduced by John Pickus, chairman of the Sawyer-for-governor committee. Others introduced were: Arthur Blake of Martins Ferry, candidate for state senator; William H. Daugherty of Wellsville, unopposed for renomination as representative to the general assembly; Conrad Berr of Leetonia, incumbent county commissioner unopposed for renomination; Frank Armstrong of Elkrun township, candidate for county recorder; Joe Finney, chairman of the Italian Democrats of Wellsville; Mrs. Rose McGuckin of Wellsville, Columbiana county Sawyer-for-governor women's committee; Robert S. Wheatley of Salineville, unopposed candidate for county engineer nomination, and Ross Tisher of East Liverpool, senior sales tax examiner and unopposed candidate for the county auditor nomination.

Glenn Roberts of East Liverpool, county recorder and candidate for state senator; Mrs. Mary Rahter of Wellsville, deputy recorder and candidate for county recorder, and T. P. Caniff of Steubenville, candidate for state senator, were among those who accompanied Davey to Steubenville.

Club's 35th Anniversary To Be Celebrated 9 Days

Final plans were being made today for the 35th anniversary celebration of East Liverpool aerie 457, Fraternal Order of Eagles, which will start in the Broadway temple Monday.

The celebration will continue for nine days, with open house daily. An indoor carnival arranged and presented by the drill and degree team is on the schedule for every afternoon and night. Games will feature the afternoon programs and entertainment and dancing those at night.

The committee in charge of the celebration is headed by Paul E. Grafton, president of the lodge, and is comprised of Rudy Halpate, secretary; James Mosier, Charles Gerace and Howard Kevert, trustees, and Edward Cubberley, Thomas McGrew, George Pepin and Roland Lisk, members of the finance committee.

A large number of out-of-town members of the order are expected to attend the event. A souvenir history of the local lodge has been compiled and will be distributed during the celebration.

LABOR BOARD SERVES FORD WITH COMPLAINT

By The Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 30.—The national labor relations board announced the Ford Motor Co. was served today with a labor board examiner's report that the company was guilty of labor spying and other anti-union activity at its Buffalo plant.

Henry J. Winters, regional director, said the report was served on Ulysses S. Thomas, attorney for the company. It will be served also on a representative of the CIO auto workers union.

The company has 10 days within which to report on how it has complied with the trial examiner's recommendations that the company be required to rehire 50 CIO workers and cease "interfering" with union organization. Winters said the company did not indicate what its action would be.

Eagles Score First Triumph In Loop's Second-Half Race

East Liverpool's Eagles Friday snapped out of the slump that cost them their first four ball games of the second-half county league race, handing Wellsville a 5-2 reverse in their encounter at Columbian park.

Anderson was on the local mound, holding the down-river forces to three hits while his mates made six hits off Mike Nelson good for five runs. The game went just six innings, being halted because of impending darkness.

Both teams scored two runs in the first inning, Wellsville combining two of its three hits with a base on balls to tally its two. Fiber led off with a single and Leatherberry got a free trip to first. After Watson fanned, Jones stepped into one for a line single and Checkler followed with a fly to left.

Paul Shea batted the Eagles' two runs across with a double. Cal Wagoner had singled and George Wagoner followed him on base. They worked a double steal and were ready for Shea's blow.

In the second a walk to Bourne a stolen base, an error and Cal's second single produced the third local run. In the fourth Mautz walked, stole second and scored on Bourne's single. The same procedure accounted for the fifth run in the next frame, George Wagoner getting the walk and stealing second and Nesselrode pushing him home with a timely hit.

Allen, The Pinch Hitter

GOODBALLET PITCHES NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME IN COUNTY TOURNEY

Flinger Leads Fleetwings To Easy Triumph

Salem Cigar Outfit Downs Local McHenry Team

Mose Goodballet, whose flinging has been one of the reasons why the Fleetwing Gas outfit mopped up all competition to win the East Liverpool City league crown this summer, turned in his best performance of the year Friday, a no-hit, no-run game to start his mates off to a 4-0 triumph over Warden's Cafe of New Salisbury in the Columbiana county championship tourney at Firestone park, Columbiana.

At the same time, Scott's Cigars of Salem, behind another superb pitching job, a two-hit game by Ritchie, downed East Liverpool's McHenry's Grocers, 5-1.

Only one Cafe batter reached first base in the Fleetwing game. That was on Goodballet's lone base on balls. Mose's mates played errorless ball behind him as he struck out seven.

The Fleetwings didn't find Russell, Warden pitcher, any soft touch. He passed out only eight hits and it wasn't until the fourth the Gas boys were able to push over a run. They followed with another in the fifth and added the last two in the seventh.

The Grocers were helpless against Salem's Ritchie. Porter and Johnny Mackey were the only ones to hit him, with Porter scoring the lone run in the fourth to break a 0-0 deadlock. The Cigars came across with three in the fifth and two in the seventh.

Two games are listed for Sunday and two for Monday to bring the tourney to the semi-finals, the slate announced by Scorer Ruckman showed today. On Sunday Parsons Coals and Firestone park will start the play at 5:45 with Jack and Jack Sonocos and Trotter's Chevrolet following an hour later. The games will follow the regular Sunday baseball game slated for 3 p. m.

On Monday the Palestine Moose team will play the winner of the Coal-Firestone game at 5:45 with Fleetwing and the Young G. O. P.'s following. The semi-finals are scheduled Tuesday and the finals Wednesday, unless rain stops the play.

GREENBURG CONTINUES HOMER SPREE BUT ODDS ARE AGAINST NEW MARK

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ALONG about this time every year, the figure Filberts sharpen up their pencils, scribble numbers all over the nearest blank spaces, and confidently conclude that Joe Zilch or Luke Glotz has a chance to bust Babe Ruth's 11-year-old record of 60 homers for one season.

Baseball men tell you those Filberts might just as well figure up their next year's income tax, because they'd come as close to the right answer. For, when you start monkeying with the Babe's all-time fence-busting high, the way to do it is to begin with the final month of the season—that gaudy September when he parked 17 among the cash customers in 30 days—and work back.

This year, however, the boys might have something there. Big Hankus Pankus Greenberg is on a spree. Right now he's 15 games in front of the Bam's record four-base pace.

Now, don't get the idea that big Hank is going to do it. The odds are all against him. He's a right-handed hitter, and American league parks are a lot friendlier to the fellows swinging from the south side of the plate. He still has to meet up with Ruth's merriest month. And, the Detroit lineup, as now constituted, offers pitchers a chance to walk the six-foot-four Jewish jolter rather than let him tag one of their select offerings.

On the other hand, there's Hank with 35 round-trip whacks to his credit already. He hit two more yesterday as the Tigers trampled the Athletics 9-2—the third time in a week and the sixth time this season he has paired his pokes. Ruth belted his 35th in his 105th game. Greenberg's 35th came in his 90th yesterday.

The Yanks remained on top of the Cleveland Indians by a slim game yesterday when a bad case of butter-fingers a-field on the part of the Chicago White Sox gave them a 4-3 victory. Hal Trosky poled out a pair of four-baggers as the Tribe trampled the Senators, 12-4.

Butter-fingers also beat the Chicago Cubs, as Billy Jurges' error enabled the Phillies to push over a run in the 12th inning for a 5-4 decision.

The Pittsburgh Pirates stayed five games in front of the National league pack by topping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7-6, after kicking a five-run lead away. The second-place Giants came from way behind to tie in the seventh and beat the Reds, 5-4 in the ninth.

Debs Garms' payoff single drove in a pair of runs and the Boston Bees nipped the Cardinals, 2-1.

SERVICE STATIONS WIN FIFTH BATTLE IN LOOP WARFARE

THE Gibbons Service Station nine, first-half winners of the City Baseball league, chalked up its fifth triumph in as many games for the second half Friday, downing the Eastern Tavern team, 8-1.

Proctor pitched four-hit ball to allow the Gibbons nine to achieve the walkaway. He also fanned 12 men and slammed out a home run and a single in his four turns at the plate.

The victors scored three in the first, two in the second and three more in the fifth. Kinsey, Cunningham and Bentley got doubles and Barcus a triple for the victors. C. Dawson's double was the only Tavern extra base blow.

The Newell Rays, with Fitch turning back the Chester I. G. A.'s without a hit or a run, scored their sixth victory in seven games in the second-half race of the Grant District Softball league Friday, winning 11-0.

Peppin's Tavern kept step a game behind the leaders, handing the Chaney Brothers team a 5-0 shellacking, while McDaniels Grill took undisputed third place with an 8-5 victory over Huffman's Coals.

Only one man reached second base while Fitch was turning in his perfect pitching performance. He struck out 15 men. His mates pounded Davidson for 12 hits, which with five Chester errors, helped substantially in the rout.

The Rays will play the East Liverpool Knights of Columbus team at 2 p. m. Sunday at Newell.

50 Experts Expected To Compete In Casting Club Tourney Sunday

SPORTS—SHOOT PROOF ....R ....

Approximately 50 participants are expected to compete in the nine events listed for the Tri-State Casting club's third annual tournament and field day at the club's pool and hatchery in Oakmont Sunday.

Among the prominent casters expected to vie for the more than $100 worth of prizes are C. W. Ward of Pittsburgh, former national titleholder, Bal and Carl Breitenbaugh, also of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania titleholders, Ted Connors of Akron, who mopped up in the Columbia County Fish and Game association's recent meet at Guilford lake, and a delegation from the Geneva Casting club.

Three prizes are offered in each of the nine events. Refreshments will be served on the grounds and the public is invited to witness the exhibitions. There will be no charge for admission.

The events:

Five-eighths ounce accuracy open; ⅝-ounce Class A; ⅜-ounce Class B; ⅜-ounce fisherman's accuracy (restricted to regulation fishing tackle —level winding reel and minimum nine pound test line); ⅜-ounce accuracy open; ⅜-ounce re-entry (open to all not winning prizes in the open event); wet fly accuracy; dry fly accuracy, and a surprise event (open to anyone who has not won a prize in any of the first eight events).

All events will be guided by rules laid down by the National Association of Scientific Angling clubs

ALL of the above described improvements being in accordance with the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles heretofore approved and now on file in the office of the Director of Public Service-Safety.

SECTION 2. That all claims for damages resulting therefrom shall be judicially inquired into before commencing of the proposed improvements, and the solicitor be and he is hereby authorized and directed to institute proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction to inquire into such claims.

SECTION 3. That the whole cost of said improvements, less fifty-nine percent to be paid by the Works Progress Administration of Ohio, and less one-fiftieth thereof plus the cost of intersections to be paid by the City, shall be assessed as to each of said streets in the following manner, to-wit:

By the foot frontage upon all lots and lands bounding and abutting upon each of said proposed improvements, which said lots and lands are hereby respectively determined to be specially benefitted by said improvement; and the cost of said improvements shall include the expense of the preliminary and other surveys, of printing and publishing the notices, resolutions and ordinances required, and of serving said notices, the cost of construction, together with the interest on bonds or notes, if any, issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred assessments, and all other necessary expenditures.

SECTION 4. That the assessments so to be levied shall be paid in five annual installments with interest on deferred payments at six percent per annum; provided, however, that the owner of any property assessed may, at his option, pay said assessment in cash within thirty days from and after the passage of the assessing ordinance, in which case said cash assessment shall not include any item of interest upon the bonds or notes, if any, to be issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments of assessments.

SECTION 5. That bonds of the City of East Liverpool shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments and in an amount equal thereto; and notes of said city shall be issued in anticipation of the levying of such assessments and the issue of such bonds.

SECTION 6. That the City Engineer be and he is hereby directed to prepare and file with this council a tentative assessment showing the amount to be assessed on each lot or parcel of land to be assessed.

SECTION 7. That fifty-nine percent of the entire cost of said improvement is to be paid by the Works Progress Administration of Ohio; that the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement; not specially assessed, together with the cost of intersections, together with the cost of any real estate or interest therein, purchased or appropriated, and the cost and expense of any appropriation proceeding therefor, and the damages awarded any owner of adjoining lands or interest therein, and the costs and expenses of any such award, shall be paid out of the City's Portion Fund or by the issuance of notes or bonds in the manner provided by law.

SECTION 8. That to pay for the cost of materials and supplies, for said improvements, there be and is hereby appropriated from the "City's Portion Fund for Works Progress Administration Projects" the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars.

SECTION 9. That the Director of Public Service be and he is hereby authorized and directed as soon as the funds therefor are available to make and execute a contract for the purchase of the necessary materials, supplies, for said improvements, with the lowest and best bidder after advertisement, according to law.

SECTION 10. That this Ordinance be and the same is hereby declared to be an emergency measure and shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law. Said emergency lies in the fact that it is essential that immediate action be taken by the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, in order to qualify for Federal Grants of money necessary to fulfill requirements for Works Progress Administration Projects.

"Attention of the Bidder is called to the special Construction Regulations which are included in the proposal contract documents, and to the special requirements, for employment of labor, wage rates, and hours of employment. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after receipt of bid. Particular attention is called to the statutory requirements of the State of Ohio relative to licensing of corporations organized under the laws of any other state."

The right is reserved by the Board of Education to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities.

By Order of the Board of Education Yellow Creek Rural School District.
